Order Abolishes 1B Draft Status

Economy Plank Of Talmadge Branded 'False'

The greatest tax-gatherer in Georgia's history, Eugene Talmadge, is collecting $31,962 a day more than any other Governor has before, Representative Jimmie Carmichael, of Cobb county, declared in a radio address last night.

The so-called surplus that Talmadge discusses in his speeches, said Carmichael, was accomplished in four ways:

1. By collecting more taxes than any other Governor of Georgia ever collected before.
2. By stopping all public service.
3. By canceling debts.
4. By juggling figures for political purposes.

Stopped Work.
"Talmadge," said Carmichael, "did not create a surplus or pay the state's debts by saving. He just collected more money than any of his predecessors ever spent." Of Talmadge's methods of handling financial affairs in the highway department, Carmichael showed how Talmadge stopped all work and continued to collect the revenues for the work that was not done.

"By the same method," said Carmichael, "a person could pay his grocery bill by not feeding his family for six months. Would this be economy?"

Carmichael was speaking in favor of the nomination of Attorney General Ellis Arnall in the September election.

Hits Pardon Racket.
Of the pardon racket, Carmichael said:

"It is known that during his last four years as Governor, Talmadge pardoned and paroled 4,500 criminals from the penitentiaries and chaingangs of this state. This is more than three pardons and paroles for every day in the year or one for every eight hours of every day of the four years he was Governor."

"This is an all-time record for the nation."

"No Governor of any state in the Union has ever granted such a large number of pardons and paroles."

If Talmadge is elected governor for another four years, the state will have to put revolving doors on the penitentiary to let the criminals out as fast as Talmadge pardons them."

Carmichael launched an attack on the closest friends and political allies of Talmadge.

"Governor Talmadge," he said, "not only pardons and paroles the criminals and the racketeers, but he also appoints them to places of honor, trust and responsibility in the state government."

Harbin, Wood Named.
Mercer J. Harbin, John Nahara and Robert F. (Cowboy) Wood were listed in the attack.

"Governor Talmadge's closest friend," said Carmichael, "is Mercer J. Harbin, of Atlanta. 'It is one of the most notorious friends."

Hugh Howell Joins Ellis Arnall Ranks

Was One of Talmadge's First Campaign Managers.

Hugh Howell, one of Talmadge's first campaign managers and a man who has rolled up heavy polls in gubernatorial elections of the past, will share the radio program with Ellis Arnall at 9 o'clock Saturday night over station WSB.

The Atlanta attorney, well-known throughout Georgia, is described by his friends as "a man who has won more votes than any man who has offered himself, but has not been elected as Governor of Georgia."

On Saturday night Howell will introduce Arnall and in that introduction he will give the views of an original Talmadge man who has been converted.

Men Either Will Be Placed in Class 4F or 1A

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—(AP)—The Selective Service System today abolished its "limited service" class 1-B, the group with minor physical defects, and ordered all but the totally unfit reclassified as available for military service.

Nearing exhaustion of the pool of 1-A registrants, those free of any known physical handicaps and not deferred from active duty for any other reason, the Army recently called for induction of men from the 1-B class.

The decision, resulting in filling local draft quotas with 1-A and 1-B registrants, has made the latter classification meaningless for all practical purposes of the Selective Service System, and its members will either be placed in 4-F, if totally unfit for service, or shifted to 1-A.

Effective Today.
The order is effective tomorrow, said an announcement by Selective Service headquarters, but the reclassifying of men in this group will begin September 1, to be completed by New Year's Day.

Not more than one-fourth of the 1-B registrants in any local board area are to be shifted to class 1-A in any single month.

When members of this group are reclassified, they will be sent to induction centers as local boards fill their quotas, and the Army will decide after their induction whether to assign them to full or limited duties.

In the reclassification process, the men will be re-examined by the local draft board physicians to determine whether there are any physical deficiencies which would prevent them from performing any military service. If such deficiencies are discovered, the registrants will be placed in class 4-F.

Boards Warned.

While physical deficiencies were the only basis for assigning men to class 1-B in the original classification, the local boards were warned that their status may have changed since that time, and possible deferment for dependency, family relationship or occupation should be considered in each case.

The change also will have a limited effect on some conscientious objectors. Those previously classified in 1-B-O, fit for limited service in noncombatant units, or 4-E-L, fit for limited service in civilian work camps, now will be classified 1-A-O, if fit for noncombatant service, or 4-E if fit for induction into work camps.

If physically disqualified for either type of service they will be classified 4-F.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—(AP)—The Navy said today that Lieutenant Barry Bingham, president of the Louisville (Ky.) Courier Journal, had been assigned to the Navy's press relations office in London.

Bingham has been on duty in the Navy Department's Public Relations Office in Washington.

Reds Abandon Krasnodar as Nazis Advance

By EDDY GILMORE.

MOSCOW, Thursday, Aug. 20.

Forty-four German troops have abandoned Krasnodar in the western Caucasus in apparent retreat toward the Black sea base of Novorossisk, but the Soviet communique early today said there was no material change in the Don river bend lines west of Stalingrad.

Forty-four German tanks were reported destroyed and more than 1,150 Germans killed in fighting extending from the Caucasian foothills in the south to Leninograd on the Baltic.

"After stubborn battles during which heavy losses were inflicted on the enemy in men and equipment our troops evacuated the town of Krasnodar," the communique said.

The Kuban river stronghold of Krasnodar which the Germans claimed August 9 is about 60 air line miles from Novorossisk, Soviet Black sea naval base, and Russian troops also were fighting south of Krasnodar in an apparent westerly withdrawal from the abandoned Maikop oil fields.

The communique located the Stalingrad battle scene as still MELBOURNE, Australia, Thursday, Aug. 20.—(AP)—Prime Minister John Curtin today announced the loss of the Australian cruiser Canberra in the Solomon Islands battle.

Meanwhile, at General MacArthur's headquarters it was learned that fighting in the Solomon Islands, which apparently had settled down to a methodical extension of footholds gained by United States forces, continued today with the broad object of stopping Japanese expansion toward the southeast.

Huge Plane Losses On Both Sides Mark Battle Over France

By WES GALLAGHER.

LONDON, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Commando forces and tanks of the Western Allies: Americans, Canadians, British and fighting French, invaded and lambasted Germany's iron-clad zone of coastal forts at Dieppe today and withdrew as planned after achieving an all-day assault on the enemy shore of the English channel, something Hitler never dared to try.

Nine hours after the first forces landed the re-embarkation was completed, just six minutes behind schedule.

A communique tonight said losses on both sides were heavy. But it was understood that every one of the principal Allied objects was achieved.

Preliminary results ashore reported up to early tonight were these:

Destruction of a six-gun shore artillery battery, an ammunition dump, an anti-aircraft battery and a radio location station.

Huge Aerial Canopy.
Allied fighter planes, making up what perhaps was the greatest aerial canopy yet sent aloft, shot down at least 82 enemy aircraft and probably destroyed or damaged more than 100 others, in addition to a number smashed by naval vessels.

Some 95 Allied planes—out of a total force of approximately 1,000—were lost.

In some quarters it was believed that the German plane losses represented close to one-third of the Luftwaffe's fighter strength in the western occupied zone of Europe and it was considered likely that the Germans would have to move fighters west from other areas, possibly even the Russian front.

Important in the Allied air action was the work of 24 American flying fortresses, which, at the start of the Dieppe action, raided the German fighter drome at Abbeville before many planes could leave the ground.

Fortresses Return.
All these fortresses returned home, after all but one had dropped their bombs on or near the target. Three were damaged by anti-aircraft fire, and the radio operator of one was the only casualty. He had an injured knee-cap.

Runways, fuel dumps and plane dispersal areas were hit.

Abbeville is 38 miles from Dieppe. Rouen, which the fortresses raided Monday, is about the same distance from today's scene of operations.

Twenty-three bombers dropped their explosives on or near the German fighter drome and its surrounding buildings, but the bomb release mechanism on the 24th ship failed to work over Abbeville and that cargo later was jettisoned into the English Channel, the communique said.

The communique text: "Observers in today's United States Army Air Force Flying Fortresses' high altitude attack upon enemy fighter base at Abbeville reported many bombs burst upon the northwest dispersal area as well as on runways. They also reported seeing acrid clouds of black smoke rising after the bombs had been placed on fuel storage sites."

23 Drop Bombs.
Twenty-three Flying Fortresses dropped their bombs on or near the target. An additional Fortress accompanied the attack but its bomb release mechanism failed to operate and the bomb load subsequently was jettisoned into the channel.

Weather conditions were clear. "All our bombers are safe."

"Twelve to 15 enemy aircraft were observed flying in the vicinity of the target, but our Fortresses encountered little opposition in

Stores To Stay Open Until 9 On Monday Nights

Downtown stores will be kept open until 9 o'clock Monday nights, beginning September 14, for the convenience of war workers and government employees, it was announced yesterday.

Department stores, men's clothing stores, dress shops, variety and furniture stores and others will adopt the Monday night schedule for a six-week experimental period, the announcement said. They will open at 12:30 o'clock Monday afternoons.

If the plan is successful, it will be continued indefinitely.

This action was decided upon at a meeting of store operators Tuesday, after they had received complaints from the 15,000 workers in this area and representatives of thousands of government workers that present working hours would not permit them to shop.

Several other large cities have already put such a plan into effect, it was pointed out.

The Georgia Power Company has agreed to co-operate by providing adequate transportation for late shoppers on Mondays.

Lieutenant Gillham declared, "Accommodate him. Even if he has a gun or a knife, close in. You can kill an armed man if you can get your hands on him, and you are at his mercy a few yards away."

Suppose he grabs the blackjack and tries to wrest it away? Motor Corps members are taught to bore in, striking the attacker under the chin with the open left hand and bringing up a hard knee to his stomach. The right hand and "billy" flies free.

Thumbs in Eyes.

"Try to jerk the blackjack out of his hand and you may find your wrist severed by the leather thong looped over the back of your hand," Lieutenant Newman warned.

Another trick they are practicing is to place the tips of their fingers in a skull recess under the ears and press the thumbs into the eyes of an attacker. If the criminal can be caught from behind, the thumbs go into the skull recess and the fingers into the eyes.

Those women also are taught to replace lost blackjacks with slender sticks. These sticks, Lieutenant Gillham pointed out, can be used as a knife. They are stabbed under the chin, through the neck and into the brain. "These are things the average criminal doesn't know," Lieutenant Gillham said. "The lawbreaker is brave because he has a gun or knife. His attention is centered upon his weapon. That's why he can be overcome so easily."

Poking a gun into another's back is a very foolish thing, the instructors demonstrated. By a quick turn the "victim" can brush aside the weapon and apply a paralyzing arm lock.

Physical instruction classes over, Motor Corps members take lessons in actual blackout driving. Their car lights are hooded with regulation civilian defense devices that will not permit the glow to be seen from the air.

They drive on completely darkened streets with headlights that are about as effective as a light-bug.

The first driving test Tuesday night carried 33 women up Lake Forest road from Wiecua to Long Island and then right to Liberty Glenn school. There they turned around and drove back to the starting point.

Mrs. Samuel Hirsch, commander of the corps, decided to cancel the driving test because of a blinding rain that came suddenly. But the Motor Corps women wouldn't hear to it. "We might as well go ahead," one member said. "Rain wouldn't stop a bombing raid."

Lieutenant Jack Carroll, of the Fulton county police, brought along a wrecker just in case it was needed. But the cars inched along in total blackness without a mis-

Man Totally Blind Is Expert West Coast Plane Spotter

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., Aug. 19.—(AP)—Although he has been totally blind for seven years, Julius Acosta Jr. is one of the most accurate plane spotters of the civilian defense council's organization here.

hap. Not a car got out of line on the route.

Other classes were back at Lake Forest and Wiecua roads again last night and still another will be there tonight. Then, they will change to another darkened section.

"We don't want a class to drive over the same road twice," Mrs. Hirsch explained. "That wouldn't be fair, because they would remember the crooks and turns in the road."

Germans Press Toward Vital Stalingrad, Oil

"southeast of Kletska" in the Don river bend, and "northeast of Kotelnikovskii." Kletska is 75 miles northwest of the Volga industrial city, but unofficial reports have said the Nazis were threatening the western bank of the Don which is only about 50 miles from Stalingrad.

Kotelnikovskii is 95 miles southwest of Stalingrad. The Russians said the Germans concentrated more than 100 tanks on one sector southeast of Kletska in an effort to crash through the Soviet lines. Thirty-one of these were reported destroyed as well as 25 trucks filled with Nazi troops. Altogether 400 Germans were killed in this sector, the communiqué added.

The fighting on both approaches to Stalingrad continued through the night.

In the Caucasian foothills Russian troops still were battling grimly to check the German sweep through Pyatigorsk toward the Grozny oil fields beyond. Today's communiqué indicated the Russian lines for the moment were holding in this sector.

Local fighting was reported on the Leningrad-Volkhov front near the Baltic. A German attempt to cross a river in the area was declared to have been repulsed by Soviet artillery.

The Russians still had time to lash out by air at Germany proper. An announcement last night said that Soviet bombers had raided Danzig, Königsberg and Tilsit on the Nazi-held Baltic coast, setting a large number of fires in all three cities without the loss of a single raider.

(British sources said in London that stiffening Red Army resistance finally was slowing the German drive into the Caucasus, but that the Germans had reached the west bank of the Don at its bend 50 miles from Stalingrad.)

Russian dispatches said the Germans had strengthened their attacking force along the entire southern front, draining western Europe for reserves, and were pressing particularly against outnumbered Soviet forces guarding the way down the Rostov-Baku railway to the Grozny oil and the Caspian sea.

In the Pyatigorsk salient, 170 miles southeast of the destroyed and abandoned Maikop oil fields, "the Germans succeeded somewhat in pressing back our troops," a communiqué reported.

Georgievsk, only a few miles beyond the Nazi spearheads at Pyatigorsk and near-by Mineralnye Vody, is an apparent first objective of the assault.

F. D. R. Orders Army To Run Machine Firm

White House Exercises Emergency Powers Seventh Time.

By The Associated Press. President Roosevelt exercised his emergency powers for the seventh time yesterday to order a private industry taken over by the Army.

On orders from the White House, Acting Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson directed Major Ralph F. Gow, of the Boston ordnance district, to take possession of the S. A. Woods Machine Company, of South Boston, Mass., and operate it.

Patterson said failure of the firm to comply with a War Labor Board order requiring the inclusion of maintenance of union membership and arbitration clauses in a contract with CIO workers "has created a serious threat to the production of vital war material which it manufactures."

In Louisville, Ky., CIO officials said members of the Aluminum Workers' Union would remain away from 11 plants of the Reynolds Metals Company until they were granted an election.

Joseph D. Cannon, CIO regional director, said four of the plants which make aluminum parts for planes had been shut down.

Mississippi Woman Seen as Mrs. Carr No. 3

Slain Officer Reportedly Visited 'Wife' in New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 19.—(AP) The New Orleans States today reported discovery of a woman believed to be the third wife of Captain David D. Carr, shot and killed in Douglas, Ariz., last Saturday by his most recent wife.

The States said that Carr was reportedly married here almost three years ago to a woman, whose name was not given, and who now is seriously ill in Biloxi, Miss. Carr lived here in 1940 and joined the National Guard here which later was inducted into war service.

His record in the Guard here shows he had previous National Guard experience in New Hampshire from April, 1933 to 1939. The States said Carr visited his ill wife here in June before going to Arizona. While here Carr worked as a reporter, a free lance writer and a broom salesman.

'First Wife' Gets Body of Carr

DOUGLAS, Ariz., Aug. 19.—(AP) The Army Public Relations Office at Fort Huachuca announced today that the body of Captain David D. Carr, 27, fatally shot by his bride, attractive, red-haired Margaret Herlihy, would be sent to his first wife, Ruth E. Carr, a nurse, of Phenix City, Ala.

Both Mrs. Carr and the captain's father, Charles C. Carr, of Omaha, Neb., had wired the mortuary asking that the body be sent there.

Carr it was disclosed yesterday, was wed to the Alabama woman and without divorcing her, Deputy County Attorney Norman Herring said, married Miss Herlihy, 21-year-old daughter of Lieutenant Colonel E. G. Herlihy. She has been charged with murdering Carr in her home early Saturday.

Twelve Killed When Bomber Smashes Tug

PBY Navy Patrol Plane Strikes Boat in Dawn Takeoff.

COCO SOLO NAVAL BASE, PANAMA CANAL ZONE, Aug. 19. (AP)—Naval authorities announced tonight eight members of the 10-man crew were killed this morning when their PBY patrol bomber crashed into the Panama Canal tug boat Alajuela.

Four members of the tug's crew also were reported killed. Authorities said the accident occurred at dawn, apparently when the plane was making a take-off run near Coco Solo Mole. They said the body of the plane crashed the tug's wheelhouse, killing the skipper, William Nebitt, formerly of Spring, N. J., and Pilot William Treddick, formerly of Haddonfield, New Jersey.

The steel-hulled tug burst into flames and it was some time before the fire was controlled sufficiently for the vessel to be towed to a near-by pier. Two other crew members were dead when they were taken off the boat and several more were taken to a hospital for treatment of severe burns. Naval officials said the names of casualties on the bomber crew would not be released until next of kin were notified.

Democratic Battle In N. Y. Turns Into 'War of Nerves'

6,000 2-Ounce Bombs To Fall Here Monday

Phillips Gives Blackout Directions; Urges People's Co-operation.

By FRANK DRAKE.

Six thousand "flour bombs" fired from eight fast-flying planes are going to rain down on the people and houses of the Atlanta metropolitan district in the big blackout Monday night—and each and every one of those bombs are going to create original "incidents" which the people and the air raid workers must solve.

The sacks of flour will fall as real bombs will, and there will be no better time in this world for residents of this five-county district to learn what to do in case real raids come.

"Some flour bombs will be in brown paper sacks, and these will be the incendiary bombs," said George M. Phillips, civilian defense director for the entire district. "Others will be in glazed paper sacks, and these are gas bombs. The remainder will be in perfectly white sacks, and signify high explosives."

Figure "Incident."

"If a white sack, for instance, falls between two houses, both these residences theoretically would be demolished. The air raid warden must figure out this 'incident' and determine what should be done to rescue trapped people. He must know how many persons are trapped, and he must call the control center for the necessary help. It'll be up to the air raid workers to handle the situation promptly and properly."

Phillips added that if a "flour bomb" hits on a house, the residents should notify the air raid warden in that block immediately—but not by telephone. Tell the warden as he makes his rounds—in person.

The director said the "bombs" will be dropped from planes of the Civilian Air Patrol under the direction of Colonel Winship Nunnally. Flares signifying fires will be set off in the third zone of Atlanta only, he added, but all the heavily populated districts will get a taste of noise from "high explosives," simulated by real "aerial bombs," which everyone has heard at pyrotechnical displays.

Stay Off Streets.

Phillips reiterated that persons must stay off the streets and highways, that only emergency trips made in the light of dimmers will be allowed, and he re-emphasized people who violate the blackout laws will be subjected to the fullest punishment allowed under the law.

"The speed limit during blackouts is 15 miles an hour and all police and auxiliary police have instructions to arrest any person violating this law," Phillips asserted.

Cars caught on the streets by the blackout, which will come between 9 and 11 o'clock Monday night, will be ordered to blackout and pull to the curb and occupants will not be allowed to leave until the blackout is over.

All Lights Out.

He warned persons leaving their homes for the evening should be sure all lights are turned out before they go—measure police will take measures to turn the lights out in the best way they can if forgetful residents leave a lighted-up building in the otherwise darkened area.

The "flour bombs" that will be dropped weigh little more than two ounces and will not kill if a direct hit is scored on a person, but being hit by one would be an unpleasant experience just the same, Phillips declared.

He urged people to stay in their homes and listen to radio reports on the blackout. The first 30 minutes will be broadcast from the air over the city, and the last 30 minutes will be broadcast from the city control center. "You'll know more about what's going on if you listen to the radio than if you go outside and try to watch the blackout," he said.

36-Mile Hikes, Swimming Rivers Toughened Rangers

LONDON, Aug. 19.—(INS)—Lieutenant Douglas Fairbanks Jr., former Hollywood movie star, today was disclosed as one of the leaders of the U. S. Ranger battalion, a section of which got its baptism under fire in today's spectacular Commando raid on Dieppe.

While he helped plan the raid as a member of the staff of Lord Louis Mountbatten, chief of the British Commandos, it was not immediately known whether Fairbanks participated in the sortie. Young Fairbanks—famous son of a famous father—spurned cushy desk jobs to qualify as an expert in the Rangers, his country's first Commando unit.

Impatient for action, he asked to be assigned to the Commandos and, when the Ranger battalion was formed, he was toughened and trained for leadership.

The Rangers are named after Rogers' Rangers, renowned in early American history. The modern Rangers, pick of the various branches of the United States forces, have all the courage and endurance of their 18th-century counterparts.

Every man is a perfect physical specimen, trained to a fine edge by months of rigorous maneuvers. They have marched 36 miles in half a day, swum rivers in full uniform, forded streams with full kits, scaled mountains.

During maneuvers, they took beachheads under the very fire of British Bren guns. Every man is hair-trigger quick on the draw, a deadly shot with revolver or tommygun, a trained demolitionist, and a master in hand-to-hand combat. In the Rangers' training, emphasis was

British Press Hails Success Of Dieppe Raid

Nazis' Hysteria Shows Concern Over Pressure, Says Guardian.

LONDON, Thursday, Aug. 20.—(AP)—The British press today hailed the Allied attack on Dieppe as a "complete success" and all agreed it was a prelude to the establishment of a second front.

The News Chronicle said "The raid, though obviously planned independently of Moscow decisions, was thus psychologically most opportune. We look on it as an earnest of still bigger things to come."

The Glasgow Herald asserted that the "relatively prolonged nature of the daylight attack and the very extensive provision of air cover" in addition to the use of tanks pointed to a test of preparations made for an invasion of the continent on an immensely larger scale.

The Daily Express commented: "We attacked one of the best defended points on the occupied coast in order to find out some more about German strength without revealing too much about our own."

The Manchester Guardian suggested that the "hysterical tone" of the Nazi announcements and the "wildness of their claims" provided "the best assurance we could have that they fear our pressure and the losses, especially air losses, implied for their thinly strung out forces."

placed on the quick kill with the knife. The Rangers participating in the Dieppe sortie are "only a fraction of the force available for this work," it was stated officially tonight.

When this all-American Commando unit was formed, it was made up for the most part of westerners, some of them Indians. Today men in the force come from every part of the United States, but each of them is rough and tough.

Even in off hours at camp, the men engage in rough house wrestling with no holds barred. All are adept at jiu jitsu.

The air. Heavy and moderate flak was experienced and three bombers sustained flak splinters. None was seriously damaged. A radio operator with an injured kneecap was the sole casualty.

A Californian flying a United States-built Mustang fighter (North American P-51) shot down a German Focke-Wulf 190 fighter over Dieppe.

Mustang Scores. The pilot was Flying Officer H. Hill, an RAF pilot flying in the army co-operation command. This was understood to be the first F-W 190 destroyed by a Mustang.

Some of the Allied tanks were lost in the fighting on shore, others were re-embarked.

For the first time these machines were landed from new, seaborne, British tank-landing vessels. The landings were made at dawn and throughout the fine, hot day the fighting was of the fiercest—nothing unexpected in this defense zone, where the fortifications are so strong and where the layout of harbors, basins, locks and channels as complicated as anywhere on the northern French coast.

Tonight's communiqué laid stress on the "vital experience gained in employment of substantial numbers of troops in an assault, and in the transportation and use of heavy equipment during combined operations."

Full-scale Rehearsal. That meant tonight that this was a full-scale rehearsal for the second front.

Some sources called it "invasion in miniature."

The Allied side did not divulge the size of the force involved, but the Germans estimated, by radio, tonight that about one division was involved, or perhaps 15,000 men.

They claimed 1,500 Allied prisoners. The Germans also said 300 to 400 landing barges, 32 transports and three freighters were employed, and that they were protected by 13 to 15 cruisers and destroyers. They claimed to have destroyed three cruisers, three "torpedo boats," and four transports.

None of this, obviously, was confirmed here.

From beginning to end of the attack the British, through the medium of the radio, told the French that this operation was not the second front, that the day of liberation was not yet at hand.

Tonight's British communiqué, therefore, jeered at the Germans for pretending they had failed a real attempt at sustained invasion.

Re-embarkation. By midafternoon, the first exultant invaders to be re-embarked after hours of battle reached England.

In the center the main force, having landed its tanks, fought throughout the day, apparently charged with making the deepest and most destructive penetration possible.

On the Al. ed left one Canadian landing party, instantly repulsed in their first attempt to get ashore, reformed and then carried the pebbly beach by assault.

The blue sky above the beaches and the cliffs of Dieppe was filled with a vast umbrella of more than 1,000 fighters from British, U. S. and Canadian commands, probably the greatest aerial protective force in history.

German Broadcasts. Berlin, broadcasting reports of the fighting throughout the day, claimed that all of the invaders had been dealt with, although a broadcast one hour earlier had said that British bases and ships still were being bombarded.

But at no time was the scope of the operation minimized by the enemy. The Berlin broadcasts said the landing was on a broad front, that German naval units had been summoned to engage the British warships off shore, and that a general counterattack was mounted on land.

Canadian troops, fresh from extensive attack maneuvers, made up the bulk of the force which the Royal Navy escorted across the channel in the hours before dawn.

With them, however, were American troops from a crack detachment of "Rangers," British Commandos (also called "Special Service Troops"), and a force of fighting French—fighting on their native soil for the first time since the great defeat of 1940.

No parachutists were used. The American Rangers, selected from a flood of volunteers, take their name from Robert Rogers' Rangers, intrepid band of men famed for their courage and endurance in upper New York state, Montreal and the Detroit area during the Seven Years' War.

Today's Rangers were toughened for weeks in the United Kingdom under the tutelage of British Commando officers—toughened by such processes as half-day speed marches of 36 miles and ascents of wooded, 4,000-foot mountains never before climbed by large groups.

They are the first U. S. Army ground forces to go into action in Europe since the first great war. At day long hundreds of watchers lined the British cliffs along the channel in the vicinity of Newhaven and other ports as endless relays of fighters shuttled across the water in the bright sunlight.

Gunfire and explosions could be heard plainly on the English side. Newhaven is only 64 miles from Dieppe, a trip of four to five hours for the popular channel steamers which carried holiday throngs to the French shore resort before the war.

Some fighter squadrons made half a dozen sweeps today, pausing only long enough to refuel and return. The scenes at air-dromes recalled the 1940 Battle of Britain, when ground crews worked so fast it was only a few minutes before the planes were back in action again.

No Fortresses Lost. Several squadrons of fighters escorted the Flying Fortresses to Abbeville and brought them back without loss of one of the giants. On Monday the fortresses bombed Rouen's railway yards and the reason was plain today—Rouen is barely 40 miles from Dieppe.

Tanks were used to destroy long-range shore batteries, ammunition dumps and to feel out the German Army defenses of which Nazi propagandists have made so many boasts.

While losses in this type of operation are expected to be heavy, the information and experience gained are counted upon to outweigh the casualties.

By virtue of its scope the attack marked an important forward step in the United Nations' offensive policy in western Europe, and Pritons rejoiced that this raid had at length progressed beyond "operations in the dark."

Radio, both British and German, played a big part in the day's hostilities.

French Warned. Fearful lest the French expose themselves to mass reprisals as they did by aiding the British Commandos who raided St. Nazaire on March 27, the British Broadcasting company told the French this was "not invasion" and warned them to stay clear of the fighting.

Every two hours the BBC announced that the French would be notified formally when the second front actually was opened. Repeatedly it mentioned the presence of the fighting French commands in the attacking force.

Berlin's big Deutschlandsender station meanwhile was broadcasting continuous code signals, presumably for the use of the defending forces.

All the landings planned by a combined staff of British and United States military advisers were accomplished in the early morning.

German broadcasts implied that the town of Dieppe itself was penetrated, at least for a time. Dieppe, normally about 25,000 population, stands at the mouth of the River Arques in a valley bordered by high white cliffs. It has one of the deepest and safest harbors on the channel, normally handling heavy freighter traffic.

The main town is on the west, the fishing suburb of Le Pollet lying east of river and harbor.

Dieppe dates back at least to the 12th century. It has a bloody history of bombardment, storm and occupation. The Germans occupied it for some months in 1871.

Since the German army overran it during the battle of France in the spring of 1940, the Dieppe area has been studied with long-range channel guns and smaller artillery, and is reported to have defenses in depth which include mine-fields and hidden forts. These may extend for 25 miles inland.

For the Canadians who bore the brunt of today's assault, it was, at long last, the first real action against the German enemy.

They were under the command of Major General J. H. Roberts, one of Canada's divisional commanders overseas.

Amphibious operations which served as planners and advisers for the well-prepared operation were drawn from Army, Navy, Marine and air force commands, and were headed by Brigadier General L. K. Truscott Jr., U. S. A.

Vichy Urges French To Be Cool, Vigilant

VICHY, Aug. 19.—(AP)—A source in close touch with Vichy government opinion urged tonight that the French remain "vigilant and cool-headed" in their attitude toward the British and American landing in the Dieppe region.

The Commando raid was described as a "setback" for the British and Americans.

"The British undertaking—obviously improvised in haste—has been translated into severe losses and has resulted in a setback," this source said. It was asserted that the landing was "an indication that the position of the Soviets is desperate, and that Stalin had demanded immediate action."

time scheduled and has been completed nine hours after the initial landing, as planned.

"Some tanks have been lost during action ashore, and reports show that fighting has been very fierce and casualties are likely to have been heavy on both sides."

"A full report will not be available until our forces are back in England."

Results Listed.

"In addition to destruction of a six-gun battery and ammunition dump reported in our earlier communiqué, a radio location station and a flak (anti-aircraft) battery, were destroyed."

"Apart from losses inflicted on the enemy, vital experience has been gained in the employment of substantial numbers of troops in assault, and in transportation and use of heavy equipment during combined operations."

"Our new tank landing craft were in action today for the first time."

"There was intense activity by aircraft of all operational commands of the RAF in support of the landing of our troops against heavy enemy defenses, and air fighting on a most intense scale also developed."

"From reports so far received 72 enemy aircraft are known to have been destroyed in support of a number shot down by naval vessels. More than 100 enemy aircraft also were probably destroyed or damaged."

"Ninety-five of our aircraft of all commands are missing, but 21 fighter pilots are known to be safe, and it is hoped that others will prove to have been rescued."

No More Alibis, War Chief Says, Shaking Fist In Aleutians

$5,600 Employee Dismissed To Give Effect to Warning.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—(AP)—War Production Chief Donald M. Nelson, obviously fighting mad and ready for a showdown on his administration of the war program, asserted today that "from now on anyone who crosses my path is going to have his head taken off."

Asked if he planned to "get tough" in licking materials shortages and in refuting charges of some critics that WPB had mismanaged the war program, Nelson told the Associated Press:

"I'm going to get tough enough to get this job done, and the job will be done, you can be sure of that. There'll be no more alibis. I'm sick of them."

Uses Fist for Emphasis. Nelson, ordinarily calm and even-tempered, smashed a fist into his hand to make the point. Swiftly attacking on internal problems—the "leak" of confidential WPB reports—Nelson gave immediate effect to his warning that heads would fall by dismissing a $5,600 WPB employee.

"He's fired," Nelson said flatly. Stephen E. Fitzgerald, head of WPB's information division, identified the victim as Frederick I. Libbey, an engineering consultant. Libbey, the spokesman said, discussed contents of a confidential report with a newspaper reporter.

Nazi Surface Raider Sinks Merchantman In South Atlantic

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

A big, heavily armed German surface raider, signaling a new type of Axis sea offensive in the south Atlantic, blasted an American merchantman to the bottom off Africa's west coast, the Navy disclosed yesterday, while Brazilian reports said planes sank at least two enemy submarines lurking off the coast of Brazil where five ships recently were torpedoed.

The Navy also announced yesterday that a United States submarine sank a Japanese cruiser or destroyer in the western Aleutians, and that a small British merchant vessel was attacked by an Axis U-boat off the northern coast of South America and sunk with the loss of three crew members.

Destruction of the British merchantman boosted to 438 the Associated Press count of announced sinkings in the western Atlantic since America's entry into the war.

The Nazi surface raider, active in the south Atlantic since mid-July, sank the American cargo ship with torpedoes and shells, 10 survivors of the encounter said. At least 15 crewmen were killed by the shelling or machine-gun fire which came simultaneously from three points, survivors reported, while nearly 20 others were taken prisoner aboard the attacker.

The captain of the sunken vessel said he believed the raider had at least six guns, that some of her armament was of eight-inch caliber and that she totaled about 8,000 to 9,000 tons. Survivors were agreed that three to four torpedoes hit the ship, and the captain was quoted as saying that six-shot salvoes crashed out about 10 times—"and they didn't miss any."

The merchantman's second officer said "our gun crew of navy men went into action, but they got off only about three shots before a shell from the raider hit the gun and put it out of action."

"The raider left about three-quarters of an hour after the sinking," the second officer added. "About 1:30 in the morning, we sighted a lifeboat, empty, but her oars had been shipped. The lifeboat was full of water, but we bailed her out and got all 11 men into her."

Navyator Program Big Success; Other Cities To Copy It

"Naval Aviation Week" is meeting with such an enthusiastic reception in Atlanta that plans are now being considered to stage similar programs in other leading cities of the southeast, it was announced yesterday at the Naval Aviation Cadet Selection Board.

Lieutenant Commander S. M. Nordhouse, senior member of the board, said city leaders in several other cities have requested that such a program be presented in their communities, and have pledged their co-operation to make the campaigns rival Atlanta's. The resultant organization of one or more Navyator Squadrons in each of those cities will be the objective, he said. The programs will have the accompanying fanfare of Navy Wings of Gold Flight Parties and contests to name the squadrons, patterned after the Atlanta campaign.

Tentative Plans. "Of course, we won't be able to get Rear Admiral William Glassford to attend all the parties, as he plans to do here next Saturday night," Lieutenant Commander Nordhouse said, "but we will endeavor to have other high-ranking naval officers at each event."

Tentative plans call for the next such program to be staged at Macon, followed by one in Charlotte, N. C. Other cities tentatively selected include Columbus, Savannah and Augusta, Ga.; Jacksonville, Miami, Tampa, Pensacola and possibly Orlando, Fla.; Charleston, Columbia and Greenville, S. C.; Asheville, Raleigh, Durham and Winston-Salem, N. C.; Nashville, Memphis, Knoxville and Chattanooga, Tenn.; Birmingham, Montgomery and Mobile, Ala. Following conclusion of the Atlanta program, Lieutenant Robert M. Gamble, of the NACSB, will leave for Macon Tuesday to set up plans for the program there and to address the Lions Club and

SEC To Drop Four Divisions In New Set-Up

Reorganization Will Promote Efficiency, Chairman Purcell Avers.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 19.—(AP) The Securities and Exchange Commission announced today a reorganization of its set-up, including the abolishment of four divisions and the creation of a new corporate finance division.

All of 93 positions which now are vacant in the old investment company, reorganization, and legal divisions are to be abolished. The commission will have a solicitor in place of a general counsel under the reorganization. The new solicitor is John F. Davis, who was assistant general counsel. Chester T. Lane, formerly general counsel, is now with the Department of Justice. Chairman Ganson Purcell said he believed the reorganization will "promote the efficiency and improve the coordination of all activities to the greatest possible degree and result in the utmost economy of operation."

The new set-up becomes effective Monday. It is believed to be one of the first voluntary reorganizations of a non-war unit of the federal government.

Garden Clubs Plan 'Scrap Tea'

To help Atlanta go over the top in the salvage drive, fifth district garden clubs are sponsoring a "scrap tea" to be held on the grounds of the capitol from 3 until 5 o'clock Friday afternoon, September 4.

Not confined just to club members, the tea is open to anyone who brings along a piece of scrap that the government is calling for. Some of the acceptable scrap includes old beds, brass curtain rods, burnt out electric bulbs, burlap sacks, rags, rubber, flat irons and stoves.

Paper and magazines are not needed, according to Mrs. W. G. Smith, chairman of the garden division of the Fifth District Federation of Women's Clubs.

Mrs. Bluenstein 'Found' At Grady Hospital

Mrs. Virginia Bluenstein, 22, who was reported to police as missing since last Friday, was discovered last night in Grady hospital where she had gone for the treatment of a minor ailment.

Mrs. Bluenstein, a waitress in the Henry Grady hotel coffee shop, notified police after she saw a story in yesterday's Constitution listing her as missing.

U. S. Attorney's Neck 'Blitzed' With 'Not Too Scarce' Gem Clip

The United States district attorney's office has been blitzkrieged, and it was a big mystery until the man responsible for the blitz confessed yesterday.

It all began when Raymond W. Martin, assistant district attorney, moved to a new office in the Old Post Office building, and looked out his windows across Poplar street to the Haas-Howell building. He found himself looking into offices in the building across the street and he decided that an advocate of the Good Neighbor policy should meet his neighbors. He counted the number of floors up and the number of windows from the corner and went over other civic groups who are co-operating in the proposal.

Atlantans Joining. With young Atlanta men appearing at the Naval Aviation Cadet Selection Board in increasing numbers, the campaign continued apace here with indications of an attendance of more than 2,000 at the Wings of Gold Flight Party on Saturday night at the city auditorium.

Meanwhile, more tardy entries in the contest to name the Atlanta squadrons rolled in yesterday, too late for consideration, but raising the total number of names suggested to 2,096, submitted by 1,017 Atlantans. Contest results will be announced Saturday night.

Lynchburg Resident Signs Up Here

Bryan Carlos Stafford, 20-year-old resident of Lynchburg, S. C., "got even" with two sisters and a brother yesterday afternoon when he became a naval aviation cadet at the Naval Aviation Cadet Selection Board on West Peachtree street.

The youngest, while he was in high school, had watched sisters Inez and Adrian become nurses and eventually enter the Army Nurses' Corps as second lieutenants.

Later he saw brother James go into the Army as a private.

Another brother, 36-year-old Otis, got the service fever and signed up for a civilian armed course before selecting the army branch's uniform he will wear.

"That left me," young Stafford said, "right at the tail end of the line. And I didn't like being there. So before Otis joined, I got the jump on him. I've always liked flying and I believe I'll fit in the Navy. So here I am."

Marine Drive Way Ahead Of Schedule

12 More Atlantans Enlist for 'Cracker' Platoon.

The Marines' drive to enlist a "Cracker" platoon went way ahead of schedule yesterday with the volunteering of 12 more Atlantans. The enlistments sent the total to 33 in the first three days of the 10-day campaign.

Sixty will be enlisted as a unit and, with more than half of the platoon all set, Marine officials were certain that more than the quota would volunteer during the campaign.

Men between the ages of 17 and 33 are eligible to join the "Cracker" platoon, which will be entertained before heading for boot school at Parris Island.

Public ceremonies at Five Points will be held when the platoon is completed. A parade is planned in honor of the Crackers, too.

Marine recruiting offices at 76 Forsyth street are staying open from 8 o'clock in the morning until 8 at night nowadays, as the Cracker keep coming in.

Those who joined yesterday were:

James Benjamin Finley, 817 Washington street, S. W.; Julian Raburn Morale, 45 Milledred place; Albert Robert Rousey Jr., Hapeville; William Carl Jordan, 936 Hollywood road; George Lee Denny, College Park; Edward Eugene Cheek, 809 Woodland avenue, S. ## 2 Submarines Are Sunk Off Brazil's Coast

Another Submersible Attacked, More Sighted.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Two submarines were declared sunk off the Brazilian coast, one other was attacked and two more were sighted in the waters of the western South Atlantic in recent operations, totaled up late today as Brazil cleared the sea lanes of all her merchant shipping.

The most recently attacked submarine was sunk early today near Bahia where it was sighted by planes of Brazil's coastal patrol. The sinking occurred shortly after announcement of the destruction of a U-boat by a United States medium bomber, piloted by Captain Jack Lacey, U. S. A., off the coast of Sergipe.

Lacey's victim, which he machinegunned, bombed back to the surface as it tried to submerge and then finished off with direct hits, was believed to be one of those responsible for the sinking of five Brazilian ships within three days.

Sign a Card; Truck Will Get Heavy Scrap

Fulton, DeKalb Groups Announce Collection Facilities.

If you're worried about how to get that old refrigerator or stove or water tank on Uncle Sam's scrap pile—worry about it no longer.

Help is on the way!

That was the word yesterday from the Fulton and DeKalb Salvage Committees and the Georgia Petroleum Industries Scrap Drive in the disclosure that post cards are being distributed dealing with the solution to this problem.

The card's heading tells the story from your point of view, for it says: "I Need A Lift With My Scrap."

In other words, if you have anything to donate to the scrap pile that is too heavy to be taken to the pick-up stations, trucks will call for it and take it to the stations.

William (Bill) Harris, chairman of the Fulton county scrap drive, said more than 500 cards have been ordered so far, with 10,000 more soon to be printed.

The cards are at the filling stations, and can be obtained there. If you need help with your scrap, fill out one of these cards and leave it at the station. The scrap drive folks will follow through.

"These cards apply only to heavy articles an individual can't bring to the station himself," said Harris. "Uncle Sam wants and needs the scrap, so we'll see that the heavier things are picked up at the homes."

In the city, municipal trucks will be used for this purpose, said Harris. In the county, contract haulers, and in outlying county sections, WPA trucks will be used.

The cards contain name and address of the individual, the best time to find someone at the house, and the approximate weight of the scrap.

Here's What Happened to Unjust Riches

"Internal Revenue Service, Unjust Enrichment Division," read the line given it without fanfare in the telephone book.

The number was listed, of course, but the operator said the telephone had been discontinued.

The Internal Revenue Department had the answer, though. "It's a long story," the men said when questioned, "but generally this was the situation. Remember the agricultural adjustment act of a few years ago? Well, when that was done away with, refunds were made."

A tax was placed on the refunds. It was called the 'unjust enrichment tax,' and the 'unjust enrichment division' was set up to take care of this.

He added that the office "was discontinued quite a while ago."

So what? Well, so the curious reporter felt better.

Many Women Seek To Join 'Waves'

CHARLESTON, S. C., Aug. 19.—(AP)—Applications for forms for commissions in the WAVES have been made by more than 1,000 women in the Sixth Naval District, Lieutenant Mildred McFall, of Naval Officer Procurement headquarters, said here today.

Since the quota for the district is 25 officers and 60 midshipmen, only a small percentage of applicants will be commissioned at this time, Lieutenant McFall said.

The Sixth Naval District is composed of South Carolina, Georgia, most of North Carolina and the northwestern tip of Florida.

The Army and Navy in Georgia

Officers below the grade of brigadier general in the inactive reserve of the Army, discharged between May 29 and December 7, 1941, because they had passed the 64-year maximum age limit, will be reappointed in the inactive reserve upon application, headquarters of the Fourth Service Command announced yesterday.

AMERICAN SOLDIERS GET AUSTRALIAN GOODS

Thousands of tons of cargo space in ships headed for the Pacific theater are being saved by the purchase of soldiers' food and clothing in Australia, it was announced at headquarters of the Fourth Service Command here yesterday.

From now on, American troops in the island continent will eat generous amounts of Australian meats, as stock raising is a major industry there and ample supplies of beef, pork and lamb are readily available. Fruits, most acceptable to Uncle Sam's fighting men, such as apples, oranges and grapes, are grown there in great abundance. Bananas are raised successfully on the coast of Queensland and all kinds of temperate zone fruits are found farther southward. Lemons and figs thrive along most of the entire eastern coastline.

The majority of the American Army clothing made in Australia is of wool, as that country is one of the leading wool producing. The woolen clothing now being manufactured in Australia for American soldiers includes: overcoats, worsted shirts, trousers, sweaters, socks, chevrons, gloves and underwear. Other items from various materials are tropical helmets, caps, shoes and nurses' cotton khaki shirts.

Commandos in Action

The commando raid on Dieppe, yesterday, was by far the largest offensive action yet staged by the United Nations in the Western European theater of war.

As essential in commando raids, land troops, naval forces and the air fighters all took part in the raid. One thousand or more British and American planes shuttled back and forth from their home bases to the scene of battle. This alone makes it a mightier offensive than any of the 1,000-plane bombings of German cities. For those earlier raids involved only one trip for the 1,000 planes. The attack of yesterday involved many round trips, each plane reloading with bombs and munitions on each return to its home field.

The commando invaders carried with them, for the first time, tanks to aid them battle the German defenders. They achieved their objectives though undoubtedly leaving dead and prisoners behind them when they returned. All results have to be paid for, in war.

The British insisted from the start the raid was no opening of a "second front." It may reasonably be surmised, however, that it was in the nature of a tryout, a rehearsal for the invasion which is bound to come, someday.

There can be no question that designated objectives were achieved. Nor that those objectives made the raid and its cost well worth while. But there is the added value of the combat test for troops and, most important of all, of a full-scale test of attack under the greatest "umbrella" of air protection yet used by any attack forces.

We shall learn more of the details and of the results of this newest commando raid. In the meantime we can be proud that American forces took part in the daring onslaught.

And wait with patience for more of the same sort of thing to come.

"We Fight Dirty"

Lieutenant Colonel John Lemp, commander of one of the newly organized United States tank destroyer battalions, thus characterized the manner of combat and tactics used by his forces. "We work in packs—like jackals," he said, "and, like jackals, we fight dirty."

Without going into detail of the new type of antitank fighting to which the colonel referred, it may be said it is based upon power and tremendous mobility, contrary to the old method of fixed antitank guns.

But there will be no complaint from any who understand modern warfare if the forces under Colonel Lemp do "fight dirty." That is the only effective way to fight such as the Nazis and Japs. That is the kind of fighting they fear, the kind of fighting which will defeat them. It is to be hoped every unit in the armies of the United Nations will learn to "fight dirty" for then the war will be over sooner.

You can't observe chivalrous rules of combat against a foe that machineguns helpless civilian refugees, against a foe that considers treachery a legitimate weapon of war, against a foe that enslaves the peoples of conquered countries into forced labor.

"Fight dirty?" Certainly. Go get 'em, anyway you can. It is results that count only, in warfare of today.

More of the Same

Hitler and Hirohito can expect more misery any day now—possibly real soon.

And big United States bombers of the type used on France Monday and yesterday will be responsible for this misery.

More of the same, Washington has asked Boeing Aircraft Company, and immediate plans to step up the plant's production of flying fortresses to full capacity already are under way.

The planes must have the stuff. American pilots operating them Monday from bases in England were pleased with the results. Government officials in Washington beamed when all the bombers returned to their bases—all 18 of them.

It won't be long until a steady stream of these bombers will be available—a steady stream to silence Hitler and Hirohito. It won't be long until they'll be showing their stuff in widespread areas—not only over France.

That is when Berlin and Tokyo will begin feeling miserable.

While Heroes Die

American soldiers, sailors, marines, airmen are, every day, giving their lives on the far-flung battlefronts of the world.

American boys are dying in order that freedom shall not perish from the earth. They are fighting cruel foes in order that the free America their forefathers created shall remain free, in order that these states of ours shall not become vassals to a ruthless Axis, that our people shall not live as slaves under the heels of victorious Nazis and Japs.

In Western Europe American air forces are beginning to do their part in the all-out bombing of Germany's centers of war production.

On the Egyptian front, according to Tuesday's late dispatches, "Introduction of the speedy and deadly American medium bombers into action over the Egyptian theater occurred Sunday night. . . ."

And, in Louisville, Ky., a dispute between CIO and AFL has so stopped work in a plant making aluminum airplane parts that, according to the president of the company, the nation has lost the equivalent of one of those medium bombers every hour.

Which is the more important? Uninterrupted manufacture of those medium bombers so urgently needed wherever our armed forces go, or jurisdictional rights over a group of American workers for one of two rival groups of organized labor?

This Is Serious

Next Monday night the Atlanta area will stage a blackout that is a genuinely serious test of the ability of the people to co-operate fully in civilian defense.

The blackout will cover the five counties which comprise the metropolitan district. George M. Phillips, director for the district, is hopeful of 100 per cent co-operation by all civilians. This time he does not plan to invoke the legal authority he has to enforce blackout rules or to make cases against violators. However, if willful violators show up, it may be necessary to call in the law.

There are 20,000 trained workers in the area who will get a complete workout during the test on Monday night. Air raid wardens, auxiliary police and firemen, ambulance corps and first aiders will all take part. There will be real planes flying above, dropping small flour sacks in imitation of bombs. There will be red flares to simulate incendiary bombs, and it will be just too bad for the householder or defense worker who is not prepared and equipped to deal with any situation which may develop.

Civilian defense is serious business. Today there is no safety from air attack in any city. The only hope of partial safety is in instant ability to throw all the forces of civilian defense into systematic, efficient service.

That ability is what will be tested in the blackout of Monday. It will reveal just how effective defense will be on that possible day when real bombs fall upon metropolitan Atlanta.

Georgia Editors Say:

"HE WILL BE GOVERNOR"

(From The Dawson News.)

Governor Eugene Talmadge and some of his campaign speakers have been trying to create the impression that the Governor was a loyal friend of the late Judge M. J. Yeomans, and they are seeking to discredit Ellis Arnall because he succeeded Judge Yeomans as attorney general of Georgia.

They also are attempting to give the false impression that Judge Yeomans was not a friend of Ellis Arnall.

The people of Dawson and Terrell county, where Judge Yeomans lived practically all of his life and where he was judge of the Patula judicial circuit, and later attorney general of Georgia under Talmadge's administration, know the truth about Governor Talmadge's friendship for Judge Yeomans.

They know that when Governor Talmadge called out the state militia and so ruthlessly ousted State Treasurer George Hamilton and Comptroller General W. B. Harrison, he resented the action of Attorney General Yeomans because that official issued a statement, which appeared in the press, condemning the act of the Governor as being in violation of the law.

The Governor did not attempt to fire Judge Yeomans. However, he vented his spleen by ousting the latter's son, Manning Yeomans, who was then state entomologist. Later Judge Yeomans was re-elected for another term.

As to the Governor's reflections on Mr. Arnall in succeeding Judge Yeomans, it is only necessary to quote what Judge Yeomans had to say about Mr. Arnall when the latter was an assistant attorney general in his office.

Judge Yeomans had this to say about Ellis Arnall: "I have in my office a young man from Coweta county who, when a matter is in doubt, will not answer a question until he has consulted the record. When he renders an opinion there is no going back. When he says anything he knows what he is saying. If he doesn't know he keeps silent. He is the brightest young man I know. He will be Governor of Georgia some day, and he will be worthy."

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

REASONS FOR RETICENCE WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—Not until ten days after our offensive action against the Japs was launched in the Solomon Islands did the Navy Department issue its first detailed communique on the developments. Two factors are responsible for this marked official reticence.

In the first place, it was desirable not to get the American people worked up over something which might result in possible failure. To have announced to the public what was being undertaken would have aroused a national enthusiasm which later developments might not have warranted.

More important considerations than this, however, probably guided the Navy. There are reasons to believe the Japs themselves did not know what was going on so why should we tell them? The Japs, of course, knew something was afoot in the Solomons. But they didn't know whether we were engaging in a hit-and-run raid, such as we conducted earlier in the Gilbert Islands, or whether we were striking with a full-fledged invasion force.

The suddenness of our blow caught them completely unawares. Our Marines had actually landed on the fog-bound islands before the accompanying transports and fleet units were picked up by reconnaissance planes. After that we must have made short order of the Jap shore installations, chasing the enemy back into the jungles and making it difficult for them to send full radio reports to Tokyo on all that had happened.

First news of the battle came from Tokyo itself. With characteristic flamboyant claims about the sinking of some 25 or 35 of our ships, the Japs put this out as a feeler. They were trying to get us to tell them what was going on.

What they said about a big naval engagement wreaking destruction on our ships was later disproved by the naval communique revealing that the only brush we had with their naval units, up to the first of this week, was at night, and this only spasmodic. Because of the darkness, we were unable to tell definitely the extent of damage our vessels had inflicted on them. The Japs retired after that and hadn't been heard of again as of August 18.

TO PROTECT CODE Still another reason for withholding the facts from the public is the wise practice of our Navy to use only a minimum of radio communication. To send a coded radio message and then release its slightly revised contents in Washington is to play directly into enemy hands. They can take their original coded message and the later communique based on its contents and break our code. All such messages are intercepted on both sides.

If the reports on the progress in the Solomons had been sent in uncoded form, the Japs would have been supplied with information of equal value to them. From what we were doing they have been able to read our objectives.

The Navy wisely handled the matter just as it should have been handled from the standpoint of military exigencies. Hence, all of the communique up to August 18, with the possible exception of the first one, gave only the sketchiest account of our operations. For a period of ten days public curiosity was served by the most meager details.

WELL-KEPT SECRET Observers have been quick to point out that the attack on the Solomons was, perhaps, the best-kept secret of the Pacific war since the Japanese bombed Pearl Harbor. Preparations for the assault began more than two months ago, or shortly after the Midway battle.

Looking backward, it is now surprising that some military commentators did not foresee an American move of the kind long ago in the Midway and Coral Sea battles. Those two engagements definitely removed Japan's superiority in fleet-going aircraft carriers and relieved any immediate threat of an attack on Hawaii or our Pacific coast.

As a result, we were placed in a position of advantage from which it would have been only logic to assume we would press with a major assault on some important Jap naval base. And yet the secret plans two months in the making were not even suspected.

MacARTHUR BUILD-UP? General MacArthur "presumably aided in the deception by feeding stories out of his Australian headquarters which tended to complain about the lack of American naval support in that sector. All of this might easily have been a build-up to prevent the Japs from suspecting what we were about.

Another cue which our Navy offered to a brewing action somewhere else was the indifference it displayed to the Japanese occupation of islands in the western Aleutian chain. This indifference, not shared by all high-ranking naval officers, was displayed a little too often. It seemed that it went out of our way to throw the Japs out of the Aleutians or were planning a major move in some other direction.

When the blow in the Solomons was finally struck we sent another fleet mission to the Aleutians at the same time and pounded Jap installations there with 3,000 big naval shells—enough to wreck everything our little brown brothers had been able to put up during the two months of their occupation.

The secret was so well kept that none of the newspapers seem to have hit upon it in any of their varied war speculations.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

Dehydration Important.

Read in the paper where Albert Ergle, a rural engineer in the Richmond county area—at least the story carried an Augusta date line—has invented a dehydrator which can be easily made at home at a cost of about $11.

If this is correct, and I have no reason to doubt it, it is a mighty important. For it means that we can save many foods, vegetables and fruits, for future use, without resort to canning or preserving.

Shortage of cans is probable in the not distant future, to say nothing of a shortage of sugar for preserving.

Many of our farm products can be dehydrated and thus kept fresh indefinitely. Dehydration is simply the removal of water from the fruit or vegetable. When it is thus dried out it keeps indefinitely and is just as fresh and good when water is restored to it when time comes to consume it.

Dehydration has, of course, to be properly done. You just can't put a bunch of vegetables in the oven. It is a rather slow process and needs careful watching. But anyone can quickly learn how and, as reported, a home dehydrator can be built for $11—that should be a valuable contribution to the production and preservation of foods for home and foreign consumption in time of war.

Dried Apples.

As far back as I can remember, dried apples have been a staple article in most groceries and food stores. And I used to wonder in my young days, if apples could be dried and sold commercially in that state, why other fruits could not be treated the same way. Dried apples were used for cooking purposes only, in so far as I know. They made excellent apple pies and other desserts.

In one place where I lived in Canada a youth, there was what we called an "apple drier" only a mile or so away. I used to go over there and watch it operate in the early fall. It was a tall wooden building, owned and operated comoperatively by the farmers of the section.

Every farm there had an apple orchard, perhaps eight or 10 acres in extent. The apples were one of the half-dozen or more cash crops which so diversified Ontario farm income that farmers were almost independent of price fluctuations or crop failures in any one product.

When the apples ripened in the fall, the farmer would generally sell the crop outright to a buyer. Sometimes the farmer would undertake to pick and pack the apples in their barrels, in other cases the buyer would do all the harvesting and packing. An average orchard would sell, on the latter plan, for about $300 or $400 for the crop.

The packers, of course, took only the good fruit. What they called the "culls" would be left in great piles upon the ground. These were mostly apples too small, or perhaps with a spot or other damage.

After the packers left, the farmer loaded these culls into his wagons and took them to the drier. Thus getting additional revenue from his orchard.

Whitened By Sulphur.

At the drier the apples were peeled, cored and sliced by machinery. The slices were then placed on large wooden trays and went into the drying tower. A carefully watched temperature of heat dried them out evenly and properly, while the drying trays slowly revolved up and down the tower. At the same time fumes of sulphur were forced into the tower to keep the drying fruit white.

Even the peelings and cores were dried and sold to manufacturers of jellies.

And in one corner of the place was a small cider mill which was kept just for the convenience of the neighbor farmers, visitors, etc. You could dump a bushel of otherwise worthless apples in there and the juice would quickly run into your jug. It was good, fresh, and some of the fellows liked it a little older.

Sometimes we would put frozen apples in the cider mill and I swear the resultant juice was the coldest stuff in the world. You couldn't possibly drink it until the frost had gone, because it would peel the skin from your lips and mouth.

But what I wanted to say was that I'm glad they've at last got a dehydrator small enough to op-

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Not All NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—Naturally, a man who is working at a war job enjoys his belief and has a right to believe he is backing up the fighters and helping to beat the enemy and preserve American liberty. But no sensible man so employed should take seriously the ballyhoo or propaganda deliberately and mechanically produced by men who make a specialty of such emotional effects, which depict him a hero of the assembly line who is making a great sacrifice in freedom's name. Of course, there are exceptional men and women who will have chuckled everything and taken substantial losses so as to find places where their hands could be put to the task, but I am dealing with the majority who must work, anyway, and would be miserable without work. It isn't very long since millions of Americans knew the spiritual agony of idleness, because there was no work, which was just as painful to the souls of men as their poverty was painful to their bodies.

Nowadays, generally speaking, work is plentiful everywhere and most of it is war work. In another year, very little or, anyway, much less, work will be unrelated to the war.

What else would our people be doing if they weren't engaged in war work, with so many non-essential tasks and services eliminated?

Virtue of Last winter Joe, the Necessity man who ran the service station and oil, saw it coming, closed out his place, took a quickie to sharpen up his mechanical skill and went into a war plant. Is he so vain or stupid as to tell himself now, or believe it when others tell him, that he is a great fellow for doing this, when he knows that if he weren't doing war work he would be out of a job altogether and not eating regularly? Would he turn down a raise of $10 a week from some company doing non-war work because he felt that this would be a minute but personal betrayal of the boys? The likelihood that he will be put to any such test diminishes day by day, but for him to take a top-lofty attitude today toward another man still hanging onto his old non-war job is to claim a virtue where only necessity is apparent.

They recognize this sort of thing in the Army, Navy and Marines. If a young man puts in for a commission in one of the specialty lines, they ascertain first whether his number is up in the draft. If it appears that he has waited until he is about to be taken away, they usually discount entirely the subject's willingness to volunteer as an officer, and reject him.

And for whose benefit is labor doing this, anyway, if not for labor's own benefit and therefore why all the oratory and the awards and flattery? Practically all of the United States is labor. This is a nation of working people and if the war is lost it will not be some vague cartoonist's symbol called Wall Street or the interests but labor who will suffer degradation and poverty. The answer is, of course, that it isn't labor but the politicians of that labor but the politicians of that labor who presume to speak for labor and who play labor for a political imbecile, who do all the boasting about labor's effort in the war. The people who do the work mostly keep on at their work, but the speeches are made by the administration men and the boss union leaders, and all the organized tie-ups for the work of professionals who use their power to hamper real labor's work.

"Morale Booster." Last winter a hustling young civilian had a bright idea which he sold to one of the big departments of the government having to do with both combat and production. He sold himself to a cabinet member as a genius in morale work and got $100,000 with which to stimulate the patriotism of labor engaged in a vital war industry. The cabinet officer insisted later that fine results had been produced, but the net of it was a rather unpleasant reflection on the patriotism of the workers affected. For what it came down to is that this particular element of labor, enjoying high wages and with everything to lose if Hitler won, had to be coddled and kidded into a decent effort through the efforts of a suite of schemes hatched in deep privacy and paid for by labor, itself, out of taxes. Does anyone mean to suggest that labor is doing anyone a favor in producing what it takes to fight the people's war.

Of course, labor is backing up the fighters, although it must be said that the effort is considerably short of that degree which the British have taught us to call "all out," what with strikes and slowdowns and stalling. But what else would labor be doing just now, when it is considered that war work is the principal industry of the entire nation?

erate on the individual farm. And, if dehydrated, or dried apples are good, why not other products?

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

COME BACK AGAIN Reading the ads in my favorite newspaper, I came across one which had my name in it. Spelled correctly, too.

It said that Ralph and Ellis had offered a man $500 to shed his red suspenders.

It didn't say it was paid. That was a relief.

Every one knows you don't pay people to take off those red suspenders. You have to pay people to put on that color. (About 300 have been hired in the past three weeks to cut roadside weeds and wear that color.)

Why, the sound of red suspenders falling to the floor resounds in every county in Georgia. They just shower down.

You sure don't have to pay to get rid of them.

It was a pleasant little ad, though. I remember Uncle Bill Murphy. He came by the office, in company with two of his friends from north Georgia, to get a copy of the picture, some hours after his picture was made. I'd never seen him before.

He was a nice old gentleman, up in his 80's, and I enjoyed a brief few minutes with him. He took home a copy of the picture, my only gift to Uncle Bill.

The editor of his home paper was escorting him. That's all I saw of Uncle Bill.

It must have been two other men who "offered" the mythical $500. Because I wasn't there, Uncle Bill.

Why, Uncle Bill, I recall you said you couldn't even control your wife's vote.

But it's all right, Uncle Bill. I enjoyed seeing you.

After that I understand that letter they wrote for the gentleman got hit in the face with the gas can down at Statesboro. I understand all the better.

Anyhow, I'm glad you didn't say you got the $500. Because the way things are going you have to pay people to put on the red ones—not take them off.

Aside from the fact it just isn't true, it's all right, Uncle Bill. I still think your first impression was right. If I recall the picture, you were holding your nose as you dropped the suspenders in the waste basket.

Come back again, Uncle Bill.

But don't let anyone write any more ads for you saying a Scotch Presbyterian offered you any money.

I liked you, Uncle Bill.

INTRODUCTION TO ECONOMY You have to be careful with those people, Uncle Bill.

You may remember the Governor's inauguration speech. He was for economy.

He was going to cut all the salaries. His included.

You know how it ended up.

He got up and asked that his be reduced.

Then the gentleman, who now just happens to be managing his campaign, got up and made a speech against it.

Now, I don't think the state of Georgia ought to have a cheap Governor. The salary isn't enough.

But I gaged at that little act whereby he asked, weakly, for his pay to be reduced and his best friend stood up and asked that it not be.

They had a quiet laugh about it later—about how neatly they did it.

Anyhow—that famed economy speech about reducing salaries, would have been hilarious if it hadn't been a little tragic.

They didn't reduce his.

They didn't cut the $6,000 salary in the Welfare Department.

They didn't cut Cousin Gene Wilburn in the Highway Department. (Understand, I don't think they should have been reduced.)

When it was all over not a single one of the "boys" had lost a cent.

And only four men had been reduced. They were the elected officials—the secretary of state, the superintendent of schools, the comptroller general and the treasurer.

It was just a coincidence, of course, that they had all been figured as against the Governor.

Dudley Glass

Pardoning Grace:
Gene Should Have Heard Bob Taylor

In a recent radio address our Governor defended his pardon and parole record as a matter of Christian charity. But he didn't do it very well. He should have, in his youth, taken lessons from my old friend of old days, Governor Bob Taylor, of Tennessee.

Governor Bob pardoned a lot of prisoners, especially about Christmas time or the season for sowing seeds. His opponents assailed him bitterly. They made an issue of it, which Governor Bob welcomed from the stump.

Whether his reply would have been effective by radio I can't say—the radio hadn't been dreamed of. Governor Bob's speeches reached only a hundred yards in each direction—his ways drew a crowd—and newspaper reports were brief. But I heard him talk many a time.

He would review his administration—or attack the other man's—without many details, but with marvelous eloquence. Governor Bob could charm a bird out of its nest or cause the squirrels in the courtyard trees to stop waving their tails while they concentrated on his words.

And down at the tail-end of his speech Governor Bob would take up his foes' accusations about his all-too-numerous pardons. Then, my friends and fellow countrymen, he was right there, playing a pipe organ with all the stops out.

Little Old Widow

Governor Bob admitted all, which usually is an excellent defense. But—

He would confess his sin. Perhaps he had been too lenient. Perhaps, on occasion, he had been deceived. But—

Then he would describe his office and his anteroom and a little woman in black ragged garments, with gnarled hands and stooped back, who had been sitting there, day after day and hour after hour, because his secretary—he had no Palace Guard—thought he should see more important visitors first. And one day he went out into the anteroom and saw this little shabby, over-worked and weary woman and grasped both her hands and led her back into his private office and asked to hear her story.

That is where he turned on the juice. "That poor little woman," he would say, "waiting patiently and pitifully to see the governor of the great state of Tennessee. The state for which her forefathers had fought the Indians and the British. The state into whose barren mountain lands they had invested their all—an axe, a musket, a sack of parched corn. That state to whose ideals and traditions they were loyal."

"This little woman told me of her husband, dead under a fallen tree. Of her seven little children. And of her great, stalwart son, sole breadwinner of the family, who had been arrested and confined in a narrow cell—he, who had been accustomed to the clean air of the mountains, the broad vista, the valleys and the peaks. Her fine son, who had done nothing more criminal than to crack down on a deputy sheriff, just for the fun of the thing, and who had hit him dead center through an unfortunate error, having taken on one too many drinks out of a friend's jug. She admitted her son drank, friends. But who doesn't? To some extent. But she insisted Tom was a good boy at heart. And he was sorely needed to put in a

Good Morning

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

FIRST THINGS FIRST.
President Jennings Burton George, of the State Teachers' College, now called Mississippi Southern College, has issued a statement under the title, "Putting First Things First," which I imagine will appeal to the immediate constituency of that institution, and may be suggestive to other institutions and communities.

President George is calling every faculty member and officer of the college to a four-day meeting, September 9-12, together with every minister in Hattiesburg, a group of businessmen, and other friends of the college and of education generally, to study the whole problem of adjusting education toward true goals and practical relationships to life.

I quote from his statement: "Have we kept faith? Section 16 of Article 6 of the first constitution that governed Mississippi provided that 'Religion, morality and knowledge being necessary to good government, the preservation of the liberty and happiness of mankind, schools and the means of education shall be forever encouraged in this state.' The second constitution of our state, which was adopted in 1832, contained the same provision.

"Every man, woman and child in Mississippi today is a product in part of our educational system. The citizens of tomorrow will be the results of the training given them today. Will the training given our young people today qualify them to meet and to solve those great and grave problems of tomorrow? Radical changes must be made in our educational system of the training given in our schools to qualify the citizens of tomorrow to do their full duty.

"From results we have received, if judged by the acts and deeds of men, it would appear that our schools have emphasized the 'knowledge' part of our education and left off the teaching that has to do with 'religion and morality.' Recently I heard a great leader, addressing educators from 42 states, advocate the theory that schools should teach knowledge for knowledge's sake. Our present world conflict is all the evidence that one needs to convince him that this theory of education leads to ruin. Our present world situation is a challenge to educational leaders to reorganize our thinking and our practices."

Such concepts of education reminds one of the statement of Milton: "Enflamed with the study of learning and the admiration of virtue; stirred up with high hopes of living to be brave men and worthy patriots, dear to God, and famous to all ages."

5 Months' Supply On Store Shelves

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Department stores, stocking up for the day when civilian production will be curtailed sharply, have on hand an average supply of nearly five months' merchandise.

This estimate came today from the Federal Reserve Board on the basis of reports from 344 representative stores in all parts of the country. At the end of June, these stores reported merchandise on hand equaled a 4.6 months' supply. At a similar time last year, they had a 2.8 months supply on hand.

"COUNTY UNIT" EFFECT IN GOVERNOR'S RACE

Editor, Constitution: Governor Talmadge received only 45 per cent of the popular vote in '32—but was the successful candidate, because the county unit system gives the small counties enormous voting advantage over the large ones. (The system is not an issue this time as both candidates are for it—and should be).

In '40 the Governor received 42 per cent of the popular vote, and it was said to be a "landslide" because the majority of the vote came from the small counties and he received 78 per cent of them (a slight majority in a county, like Dade, with about 500 votes would give him the two county unit votes, where a large majority in a county like Fulton (50,000) would give his opponent only six units).

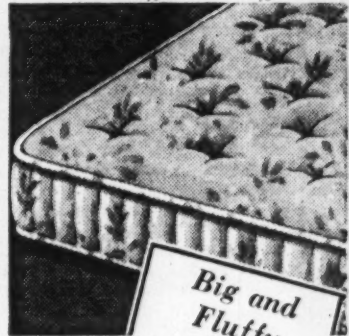

This explains the Talmadge strategy; luck and "landslides." But the Governor has never been up against the collection of disadvantages that he faces this time such as: (1), a one-man opposition; (2), the entire educational-minded people, almost the entire newspaper world; (3), the labor world, and many other groups who have their own grievances, such as the all-time Democrats who resent the attitude of the Governor toward the man to whom the nation is looking for deliverance in this war, as well as in many other lines—Franklin Roosevelt. Also the staunch southerners who resent the injection of the "nigger, nigger" cry at a time like this, which is so uncalled for.

Good southerners always resent the injection of such matter into even a casual conversation. And "furniners," coming here, soon learn that there is nothing to discuss. Most of them soon become good southerners in this way. The Governor—it is hoped—will learn by September 10 that there is, in the minds of southerners, no racial problem that needs airing in a campaign.

11-Year-Old Begs For Good Education At Arnall Rally

GREENSBORO, Ga., Aug. 19.—An 11-year-old boy—Hunter Wilson, of Crawfordsville—stood before a solemnly-impressed audience of more than 3,000 men, women and children here today and begged for a chance for a decent education in the school of his dreams—the University of Georgia.

Over the microphones came his wistful, small voice:

"It has always been my ambition to go to the University of Georgia.

"I pray every night that some time before long that university will win back its old standing.

"I don't want to have to go outside my Georgia to get an education—I want my education here at home, where I belong.

"I have heard that Ellis Arnall is the only man running for governor right now who is willing to help me and plenty of other Georgia boys. I hope all you grown people who can vote will vote for Ellis Arnall and give us boys and girls a chance for an education."

And, as 11-year-old Hunter thanked listeners who were packed into the courthouse square and extended out into the side streets, the crowd roared a lusty promise that all those boys and girls would not be let down by the voters of Georgia.

Sympathetic Audience. The Ellis Arnall meeting at Greensboro today was a stern rebuke to the Governor of Georgia who has betrayed and smashed the school system—the man who spoke here about two weeks ago to a much smaller and far less sympathetic group of listeners, who are to pass judgment on his destruction of the state school when his name is offered them on the ballots three weeks from today.

The halting appeal of Hunter Wilson was the keynote of a mammoth demonstration for Ellis Arnall, the candidate who has pledged himself to correct the wrongs that Talmadge has inflicted in a betrayal of the school system that educated him.

Greensboro gathered for a revival today—a revival of sound, democratic government in Georgia. Volunteers in the cause of clean government swarmed here in caravans. From Union City, came 53 automobiles loaded with cheering Arnall supporters. From Crawfordville, in neighboring Tallapoosa county, came 15 cars—loaded with Arnall supporters.

Motorcades came from White Plains, in Greene county; from Siloam, from Marion, over in Morgan county, where Arnall spoke a week ago and fired a mighty blast against Talmadgeism. There were carloads from Woodville. On the platform sat Sheriff A. Y. Crowley, of Oconee; Judge Osgood Williams, of Crawfordville; W. H. Rhodes, a Union Point business leader; J. V. Akins, president of the council of Greensboro; W. W. Darden, a railroad man who is a brotherhood leader from Union Point; John S. Callaway, city clerk and attorney of Greensboro; Fletcher Manley, from Madison.

Prayer for Decency. The Reverend Max Whittemore opened the meeting with a prayer for the cause of decency in government.

Judge Williams, from Tallapoosa county, declared:

"There is need for a change in the officials of Georgia today. We must help the school boys in their fight. We must rid the state government of those who are destroying our traditions.

"Talmadge has never helped the right side.

"We must drop a bomb into our state capitol—and not a bomb of tear gas. It will be a bomb of ballots.

"Taliaferro and Greene county have always worked side by side. We are together in this fight for our boys and girls.

"Our next Governor—Ellis Arnall—will never organize a Grass Roots convention and never will sponsor a Republican candidate."

Kay Tipton, attorney and president of the Madison Kiwanis Club, said:

"The present Governor has crammed the state pay rolls with more employees than any Governor in the history of Georgia.

"Talmadge never stays in his office—he is willing to see only his intimate friends.

"The farmers of Georgia are in the majority and they know Ellis Arnall will give them a clean, efficient administration of their government."

In introducing Ellis Arnall, John S. Callaway said:

"We have two issues of vital importance to Georgians today—the preservation of our colleges and universities and the maintenance of national unity.

"Your present governor has struck a head-rending and staggering blow to national unity by his political acts.

"As evidence of a disreputable administration was the fake trial of Drs. Cocking and Pittman.

"Your present Governor refuses to say even now that if he is re-elected that he will make any effort to right the damage he has done.

"I have watched politics for the last 30 years in my native Georgia and I know that a man who hurts the school system of this state will be repudiated by the voter.

"Let his record speak for him."

Arnall Hits Redwine. Arnall, in his address, made this direct challenge to Charles Redwine, Talmadge campaign manager, who resented a pledge of Arnall that the Redwine asphalt deals with the state of Georgia would be investigated.

"Brother Redwine is going to have his wish fulfilled, in January. His wish will be fulfilled by the peoples' representatives—the members of the Georgia legislature. We are going to look into some tar and asphalt contracts that Redwine has with the state of Georgia.

"The man who is running against me and who will be defeated by the people next month is so desperate that he is buying large advertisements in the newspapers, accusing me of paying $500 to some fellow who shucked off his red galluses. Why, it would have been better to have paid some fellow to suffer the embarrassment of putting on a pair of red galluses—the obsolete badge of a defeated politician.

"If I were to pay everybody in Georgia a half cent each for shucking the red galluses that have been shucked, my campaign would have collapsed, because my money would have been gone long ago."

Arnall reiterated his ten pledges, led by his pledge to restore the credits to the University System.

Talmadge Talk At Louisville Termed 'Flop'

Small Crowd Listless as Governor Repeats Harangues.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. LOUISVILLE, Ga., Aug. 19.—A tired, haggard Talmadge caravan pulled into Louisville today for the smallest meeting the present Georgia Governor has ever assembled in this historic city.

From a platform in front of the Jefferson county courthouse, the Governor offered to the voters his arguments for re-election:

1. New libel laws to control untruthful newspapers.

2. The perils he sees in a race issue.

3. The patriotism of Herman Talmadge, his son.

It was the usual speech he makes over the radio from Atlanta every Friday night and the audience received it impassively.

The Governor's claque—state payroll attaches who accompany him to shout "whoopie" when he mentions his particular hates—gathered listlessly in front of the platform and put little spirit into their performance.

"Guess, we'll have to phone Atlanta for a new crowd for the 'whoopie' yelling," a Talmadge man, on tour, confided to a Louisville resident.

In the audience for a part of the speech was Mrs. Virginia Polihill Price, Georgia's national committeewoman, who commented:

"You know—this is the first time I've ever heard the Governor out in the hustings. The only time I've heard him speak, was at fashionable gatherings in Atlanta where he wore his tuxedo—physically and spiritually. He struck me as being as bored with his talk as I was."

The Governor failed to produce the checks he usually brandishes when he condemns certain Atlanta newspapers.

"I got 'em," he said, tossing his lock. "I'll show 'em to you whenever you want 'em."

But nobody in the crowd seemed to care to see them.

Mostly Strangers. The Talmadge caravan swept into town, where school buses had been unloading visitors from unknown points.

"I've lived around here a mighty long time," said a Louisville attorney, Wright W. Abbott Jr., "but I can't recognize about half the people in this crowd."

The crowd of 500, according to prominent citizens of Louisville, was about half the size of the Talmadge gathering here in the last Talmadge campaign.

"And half these people are not from this county," they said. "They're strangers we've never seen before."

Some years ago, when Talmadge was running during his earlier years, he virtually wrecked Louisville with a barbecue he staged here. The farmers and the visitors fought for a serving at the barbecue table, knocking the table over and tearing the grounds to pieces in their frenzy for Talmadge and free barbecue.

Today, though, it was different. "It just didn't have the old Talmadge campaign fervor," said a resident. "It lacked color. Talmadge lacked color. The 'whoopie' boys lacked color."

And on the outskirts of the crowd circulated about 25 Arnall supporters, exchanging smiles of deep gratification.

Arnall will speak in Louisville later in his campaign.

BACK TO GERMANY—The old German cannon, made in Essen, which has stood in Marietta's park square since shortly after World War I, is being cut up for scrap and will be sent back with the worst wishes of local residents to its makers. Steel from the old cannon is very high-grade and will go into the nation's scrap campaign. It will weigh somewhere between 3,000 and 5,000 pounds and should bring about $18.75 per ton, according to Lucius Atherton, American Legion member. Lamar Partain, local NYA head, had charge of cutting up the cannon. The boy wielding the cutting torch is Walter Tucker, 17, who has been training with NYA for only four weeks.

Talmadge's Economy Plank Is Branded False

ships of the nation. They are seen together everywhere. Harbin boasts to his friends he can get anything he wants at the capitol, just by speaking to the Governor.

"When Governor Talmadge took a trip to Cuba, who were his companions?—they were fat Johnny Goodwin, former Atlanta beer salesman, now chief bodyguard to the unsafe Governor; 'Thin Concrete' John Whitley, the man who has a monopoly on building roads under Talmadge with state funds, and Mercer J. Harbin.

"When Governor Talmadge went to the Kentucky Derby, he was in his box with fat Johnny Goodwin on one side and Mercer J. Harbin on the other.

"When he goes to his farm to look at his beef cattle, particularly when he goes to his new farm which he bought shortly after he became Governor, for a meager consideration of $25,000 in cash, he carries as his companion Mercer J. Harbin."

"Surrounded by Criminals." Talmadge, said Carmichael, is surrounded by criminals.

Carmichael listed three convictions against the portly Johnny Nabara, who has been the bodyguard of this year's campaign.

"Cowboy" Wood was referred to as the "Hero of the Battle of Statesboro"—the first man to use tear gas in Georgia's present political war.

"The latest exploit of that brave warrior, Wood," said Carmichael, "was when he assaulted a helpless old man, past 70 years of age who had committed the heinous crime of putting an Ellis Arnall sticker in the window of his place of business."

"Of what gang of cutthroats does this remind you?"

"On the 22 day of October, 1937, Mercer J. Harbin pleaded guilty in the Fulton county superior court on an indictment of five counts for operating a lottery—what is commonly known as the 'bug racket.' He was fined $1,000 and was given a suspended sentence of 60 months or five years."

"Power Behind Throne." He is Gene's friend—he is the power behind the throne—he is one of the lieutenant-colonels on the Governor's staff. He is the boss of Georgia!

"What is his interest in state government? Why is he such a bosom friend of Governor Talmadge? Recently the mayor of Atlanta vetoed the liquor license of this Mercer J. Harbin on the ground that the average liquor store in Atlanta did an annual business of from $15,000 to $50,000 per year, whereas the liquor store of Mercer J. Harbin last year handled over $650,000 worth of liquor."

Carmichael's address was the second he has delivered for Arnall. The first dealt with financial affairs of the state, in which he charged that Talmadge claims of economy were false, and that in spending state money, the Governor had set a new high figure for Georgia.

Last week, Representative J. W. Culpepper, veteran of 24 years in the assembly from Fayette county, answered Carmichael in defense of Talmadge. Last night, Carmichael, in turn rebutted the Fayette county representative, declaring that Culpepper "did not deny my charge that Talmadge has employed 721 more useless employees than even... Ed Rivers."

Huge Spending. After a long analysis of state fiscal operations, Carmichael held this manner: Paid Rivers a surplus (Talmadge claims one of $9,000,000) or pay the state's debts (Talmadge says he has paid $22,000,000) by saving. He just collected enough extra money to have the surplus, pay debts at the same time and spend as much or more money than any of his predecessors ever have spent."

On one of the main issues of the gubernatorial campaign, Carmichael said "Governor Eugene Talmadge has disgraced the state by seeking to make the sole issue in his campaign a race question. He has gone from one end of the state to the other stirring up disension and disunity by preaching race hatred."

"In this greatest of all war spectacles, we see the sorry spectacle of 'Hicks' Fort, a prominent criminal lawyer of Columbus, Ga., recently made a radio address in behalf of Governor Talmadge. He said not once but many times, and I quote: 'They are known by the company they keep.' Yes, Talmadge is known by the company Harbin, Johnny Nabara and Robert F. Wood. These are the members of the Palace Guard. Hicks Fort, the Talmadge stalwart, says: 'They are known by the company they keep.'"

Challenges Denial. "Not only these instances, but there are many others time does not permit me to detail. Talmadge has even gone so far as to pardon convicted racketeers and even murderers and place them on the state pay roll. I defy the Governor to deny this, and I will furnish the names and the records of these people to any one who is interested in knowing their identity."

Talmadge seeks to cover up his misdeeds and his racketeering associates by throwing up a smoke screen of false issues. He curses the Atlanta papers. To hear him talk one would think that The Atlanta Journal and Constitution were the only papers exposing him. Why doesn't he be honest and tell you that 75 country weekly papers are opposing him? If he wants to be honest, which he does not, why does he not tell you that only 13 country weeklies are supporting him? Every dictator curses the newspapers! They expose the dictator and his criminal methods of operation. Huey Long cursed what he called "the lying newspapers." Hitler cursed the papers and now prevents them from writing anything except what he wants to hear. Hitler, Huey Long and Talmadge! Three of a kind!

Some years ago, when Talmadge was running during his earlier years, he virtually wrecked Louisville with a barbecue he staged here. The farmers and the visitors fought for a serving at the barbecue table, knocking the table over and tearing the grounds to pieces in their frenzy for Talmadge and free barbecue.

Today, though, it was different. "It just didn't have the old Talmadge campaign fervor," said a resident. "It lacked color. Talmadge lacked color. The 'whoopie' boys lacked color."

And on the outskirts of the crowd circulated about 25 Arnall supporters, exchanging smiles of deep gratification.

Arnall will speak in Louisville later in his campaign.

MY DAY: Mexican Women Work For Unity

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

HYDE PARK, Tuesday.—Miss Mary Winslow, in the Office of the Co-ordinator of Inter-American Affairs, came to see me in Washington the other day to tell me about her trip to Mexico, which she had undertaken at the invitation of a group of Mexican women's organizations. They called a mass meeting of women and Miss Winslow showed me some of the handbills used at it. They seemed striking in their make-up and extremely concise in the way in which they expressed the reasons for women to take an active part in the war situation.

The first handbill simply stated, "Your country calls you," and then listed creeds and political parties. However, it had underneath them the simple phrase: "If you are Mexicans, to defend the liberty which you have created, your country calls you." In this way was emphasized the unity of interest of all creeds and political parties. A second flier listed the various things Nazi-Fascism would wipe out, dramatizing thus in the simplest and most direct manner, not only unity, but the reasons why unity could and should exist.

Miss Thompson and I came up from New York City yesterday afternoon to Hyde Park and brought a little girl with us to add to our younger set group. The children were all at the pool when we arrived, so we put on our bathing suits and played some games and swam before we held a birthday celebration, which the children themselves had planned.

Today I have a letter from a woman which tells me of a local political situation. In the primaries of her party, she quite evidently suspects one candidate of being pro-Nazi, and urges me to investigate the circumstances of her particular locality. I do not think it is possible for anyone, not even the leaders of a political organization, really to know in detail the exact situation in every locality. That is why we hold primaries, so that the people who live in the locality may have the opportunity to choose the best man as they see him and know him.

People who are detached from party organizations can study published principles and can stand for certain general ideas and actions within groups. But where the individual localities are concerned, it is the people who live in those localities who have to weigh the real virtues of their candidates. Sometimes neither candidate seems good enough, and they may even have to vote against their own party in the final election. The value of democracy lies in the fact that good or bad government has its roots in the localities where people know each other and where they account for their actions to their neighbors.

400 To Attend Bryant Reunion

The yearly gathering of the Bryant family, which consists of 258 direct descendants of William Bryant, will be held Sunday at the Mount Gilead camp grounds. About 400, including relatives by marriage, are expected to attend. Dinner on the ground will be served.

William Bryant settled in south Fulton county in 1851 in what is now Bryant's district, on the site of the present home of one of his granddaughters, Mrs. T. O. Hathcock, wife of Judge Hathcock, of Fulton civil court. Sherman's army destroyed the original home-stead, cutting it to pieces with axes instead of employing the usual method of setting it afire.

'Get Tough With Us', Said To Express Feeling in Midwest

(This is the second article in a series by Inez Robb about her impressions of American war spirit in the midwest and northwest during a 6,000-mile trip from which she has just returned to New York.)

By INEZ ROBB,

International News Service Staff Writer.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—"This Elmer Davis says we are ankle deep in this war, but he's boasting," opined Chick Guffey, the Omaha cab driver.

"I was in the last war, Miss, and so far we ain't even got our feet wet in this one. What I want is for the government to get tough with us as well as with the Germans and the Japs."

"I don't need anyone to tell me I gotta make sacrifices to win the war. But I sure wish the government would tell me what sacrifices I gotta make. Then I could get at 'em."

Thus, succinctly, Chick spoke the sentiment of the midwest. Chick and millions like him are waiting—and praying—for the government to quit mentioning sacrifices in general and to demand sacrifices in specific.

Willing To Sacrifice.

They are willing to do anything, give up anything—and gladly—if only some one in authority will tell them how and what. Their men and their money are flowing now like a mighty stream into the war effort. But they, too, are willing to plunge in over their heads and start swimming for the opposite shore the instant they get the signal.

They shrug off sugar-rationing like a world champ shrugging off a slap on the wrist. What they long for is a sacrifice or a task worthy of their own sturdy self-respect.

These whole-hearted sons of democracy want to be told what to do in ringing top-sergeant tones, if necessary. For instance, they are tired of a great nation asking them—"pretty please"—to conserve gasoline as the long way round to saving tires.

"If the government needs the rubber, let 'em have it," is the consensus.

"Furthermore, I don't need to be spoon-fed," added Chick Guffey, to return momentarily to this midwest realist. "If the government's got bad news to tell, I can take it. They don't have to tie it up in pink ribbons. When I want is the facts."

"When Americans can't stand the truth, then they can't win a war!"

On a 6,000-mile journey, I found no one who disagreed with Chick.

Wary of "fussy-footing,"

"Maybe when the elections are over, congress will quit running for re-election and start running the war and the country," sighed J. U. Higgenboe, cattleman, as we cooled our heels in the airport at Cheyenne, Wyo.

"Maybe then congress will have the guts to tell us what to do."

Like Guffey, Higgenboe echoed the sentiments of the mid-west.

The way Atlanta is laid out, like a hand with the main transportation arteries running out the fingers, makes it tough to get around quickly. Hence Taxis are a vital part of surface transportation in Atlanta.

We cannot buy new Taxis, so we must make the most of what we have. And in that you can help. In fact, you can help a lot.

If we send a cab all the way out from the Garage for every call, obviously a lot of Taxis run a lot of miles, empty. And that's waste.

If each cab that goes out with a passenger can pick up another passenger to bring back—that's economy.

So we have Outpost Telephones all over the City, and when a Taxi drops a fare the driver phones in to the Dispatching Switchboard, so they can assign him a pickup at some point near where he is.

If you'll give us about 15 minutes warning, you can be part of that economical process.

If you must have a Taxi "right now" we must send out a "dead-head" for you. So please try to give us notice ahead of time, won't you?

Army Seeking Civilian Automobile Mechanics

A call for expert civilian automotive mechanics who want jobs with the Army was issued yesterday by Colonel John A. Nelson, automotive officer of the Fourth Service Command.

Interviews for positions will begin at 8 o'clock this morning at room 222, Hurt Building, Atlanta. The civil service positions pay $2,040 per year.

Atlanta Without Director of Smoke Bureau

The Atlanta Smoke Abatement Bureau yesterday was without a directing head, and the city personnel department and the advisory committee to the bureau were attempting to work out a wartime solution.

Major William E. Tidmore, who until a few days ago was serving as a military instructor at Georgia Tech and was supervising activities of the department, has been transferred from Atlanta.

Thus far no provision has been made to select a successor, and since Tidmore is on a military leave of absence, no move will be made to elect another director.

Stafford W. Graydon, city personnel director, is studying a proposal to establish eligible lists for an assistant mechanical engineer for the department to serve as directing head until Tidmore returns. The salary will be set at $250 a month. Tidmore drew $300. There are five employees in the recently established bureau.

The personnel board will consider the new position Tuesday afternoon at the city hall.

Rochelle Bicyclists

Form Defense Club

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. ROCHELLE, Ga., Aug. 19.—A wide-awake defense agency has been organized in Rochelle, and has been named the "Cycle Defense Club," consisting of 21 young bicycle owners in the community, who are busy collecting old phonograph records for the American Legion to turn in for the boys in the service.

The club has formally organized with the following officers: Carolyn Clements, captain; Alice Gwendolyn Taylor, first lieutenant; Sara Hilderbrand, second lieutenant; Clarice Hilderbrand, sergeant; Marion Louise Kelley, corporal.

They have collected 115 records for the Legion and expect to turn their salvaged rubber into cash so they may "treat the boys when they leave to go to the Army." They also plan to have matinee performances at the local picture show to swell their purse for that purpose.

The club was organized by Mrs. Mozelle McCollum Taylor.

Activity at Harris' Home Excites Fervid Curiosity

• • • HABERSHAM ROAD neighbors of Jake and Dot Harris (whose visiting cards are inscribed "Mr. and Mrs. Joel Chandler Harris Jr.") probably have been consumed with curiosity over the bee-hive activity going on at the Harris household. Since the season is too advanced for spring cleaning, and too early for fall cleaning, the concentrated turning inside-out of the attic, basement and garage by the Harises, naturally has set the neighbors to wondering. For certainly the "goings-on" can be compared only with semiannual cleaning sprees.

There's a reason, of course, behind all this mad industry—an example of patriotism that everyone should follow. Jake, it so happens, is a member of the salvage committee, and he and Dot have been inspired to garner every possible piece of scrap metal, rags, manila ropes, burlap bags and old rubber that might be useful to the government in its war effort.

Since broken tools, golf clubs, light sockets, hose, etc., usually are stored away in attic, basement, garage and tool-house, with the idea that some day they may be mended (and invariably never are), these are the places to begin the search. Hence, the reason for the clean-up "blitz" indulged in by Dot and Jake.

Almost any odds and ends will be gratefully received, with the exception of waste paper, razor blades and tin cans, by the salvage committee. Jake, who is famed as a wit, refers to the odds and ends in his own inimitable way. According to him, "the odds are that it will end the war much quicker if you turn in your odds and ends to the nearest filling station."

Jake's agile mind also has contributed a slogan for the salvage committee—although to date it hasn't been officially adopted. He guarantees that it will end any war pronto, Sally, for one, agrees, for the slogan is: "When you get in a family argument, take your scrap to the nearest filling station!"

• • • CLEVER invitations have been issued by Nell Perrin for the breakfast she is giving next Sunday morning for bride-elect Marguerite Woolsey. Marguerite, you recall, will be married to Lieutenant Donald Alrutz on September 5 at the Post chapel at Camp Shelby, Miss.

The invitations read as follows:

"The bride-elect is lovely and also very sweet. You've already guessed it her name is Marguerite. I'm giving her a breakfast and this is to say you're cordially invited, so be on your way. August 23 I've chosen as the date."

That's on Sunday morning, so try and not be late! 155 Clairmont, Apt. 6, is the place. May I expect to see you with a smile on your face? If you cannot be here at almost eleven. Please call me—Cr. 4627."

The breakfast will assemble Eloise Gill, Dorothy Hise, Ida Mae Kissell, Sara Lee, Jean Herrin and Mrs. P. S. Dunlap, Jr.

• • • VISITS TO "Grandmother's house" hold never-to-be-forgotten memories for many grown-ups, and no visits of the very younger set hold more anticipation than those planned for "Grandma's." This week at the Normans Sharp home on Rivers road, Mrs. Sharp is entertaining her young granddaughter, Lutitia Sharp, and the latter's close friend, Mary Ann Edmondson. These little girls have been close chums since kindergarten days, and every summer when Lutitia makes her annual visit to her grandmother's home, Mary Ann shares in the good times planned.

Today Lutitia's aunt, Jane Sharp (Mrs. Christopher) McLoughlin, will entertain the little girls at a swimming party at Brookhaven, the Capital City Country Club, and, incidentally, the affair will be the first party to be given by Jane since she became a bride several weeks ago. Tomorrow the two young children will be entertained at a swimming party at the Driving Club, followed by a luncheon in the special dining room for children, while visits to the movies and informal tea parties will round out a very full calendar.

Lutitia, you know, is the daughter of Jack and Lutitia Johnson Sharp, and Mary Ann is the daughter of Ray and Mary, Candler Edmondson.

• • • DO YOU KNOW: That Ann Ragan has been named sponsor for the T. D. T. fraternity? . . . That a brunet Atlanta boy, who attended school at L. S. U. is rumored married to a Louisiana belle? . . . That Mr. and Mrs. T. Erwin Schneider and their son, Tommy, will move into their new home on Austell way next week? . . . That Mary Jane Campbell (Mrs. Wharton) Mitchell is recuperating from a recent illness at the home of her parents, Dr. and Mrs. William E. Campbell Jr.? . . . That Frank Carter Jr. will enter the freshman class at the Citadel at an early date? . . . That the lovely portrait of Margaret Harmon painted by Mrs. Herbert Oliver is constantly admired by Margaret's friends? . . . That Elsa McCall (Mrs. Forrest III) Adair has joined Forrest in Miami, where the latter is on duty with the Army Air Corps? . . . That Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Lynch, on Sunset Island, where she is residing while Mr. and Mrs. Lynch are at their summer home in Asheville? . . . That Katherine McKie is taking flying lessons? . . . That Dorothy (Mrs. Samuel) Hirsch has

Miss Dorothy Stribling gives a bridge-luncheon tomorrow at her home on Avery drive for the Zeta Tau Alpha alumnae. Misses Miriam Pope, of Miami, Fla., and Kathryn Bowen, Dallas, Texas, will be out-of-town guests.

All alumnae are invited to these affairs, and new arrivals here may call Mrs. Ross Garner, Cherokee 1982 for other information.

College Park Club Maps Year's Plans

Mrs. A. T. Akers, president of the College Park Woman's Club, presided at the recent special meeting of the club, at which time plans and suggestions for the new year were made. Emphasis was placed upon the fact that the members will devote their time and talents to war work whenever possible.

Mrs. Akers asked the members and their friends to co-operate in the drive for scrap material. Boy Scouts and city trucks will call at every home to collect scrap iron, rubber, rags and metal essential to the war effort, and it is hoped the women of the club will be large contributors to this campaign.

The first of the fall activities of the club will be a luncheon to be held in September. Later in the season a bazaar, cooking school and food sale will be held. Plans were also discussed for a series of Officers for 1942-1943 include: President, Mrs. A. T. Akers; first vice president, Mrs. W. L. Croust; second vice president, Mrs. T. H. Porch; recording secretary, Mrs. J. urer, Mrs. F. C. Doss; auditor, Mrs. H. Archer; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Eva Thornton; treasurer, Mrs. F. C. # Man's Attitude Toward Mistakes Is the Best Test of His Love

Dear Dixie:

I married at 14 and after five weeks I discovered that I had made a terrible mistake. My husband ran around with other women all the time. I left him and went to another state to work. While there I met a boy whom I love very much and he says he loves me. But he holds it against me that I'm married and says he is going to volunteer for the Army because he cannot stay away from me if he stays here. What would you advise me to do? I am an orphan.

By Dixie George.

As for the other man, he sounds very unsympathetic to hold your mistake against you, although I can, in a way, understand his point. A man never likes to think that his wife once belonged to another man, but under the circumstances of your unfortunate venture it seems to me he would overlook the marriage.

Do not let him hold that threat of patriotism over you. He is only trying to work on your sympathies, for it is a ten-to-one shot that he will have to go into the service sooner or later and being near you is not going to make him join any sooner. Why don't you ask him why he resents being so near you if he loves you? If you love him try to make him look at the marriage situation and his love for you in a sane and sensible manner. Tell him to do his duty for his country, and if his love is true, you will be true to him and be waiting when he comes back.

IF IN DOUBT POSTPONE MARRIAGE.

Dear Dixie:

Four years ago in my freshman year at college, I met a girl, and we were classmates for two years, and, through some sad misfortune, she had to drop out of the class. I was and still am in love with her. We have written through these years and it has reached the point where we have mentioned marriage and I love her that much. I have finished my college work but am faced with a problem. She has a responsibility which a girl of her age should not have. I am doubtful as to whether I should let her carry it for a year or two longer, but at the same time, I know that she shouldn't if she is to be my wife.

I have never worked for myself and would like to experience taking care of myself before marrying; not that I do not think she would do her part, but because I wonder if I am treating myself fairly, knowing that I would be her for my wife and continuing to let the responsibility stay on her. Furthermore, I know that it might have some effect on her later on in life. What would you suggest for me?

UNCERTAIN.

Since there is a doubt in your mind about marrying this girl, I would advise you to wait awhile. I am sure that you love her, but from the tone of your letter I do not think that you love her enough. If you loved her so much that you wanted her, you would not give the idea of whether you are treating yourself fairly or whether she would be treated fairly. You would marry her and let the future take care of itself. And, another thing, you did not mention whether or not you had asked her to marry you. Perhaps this responsibility which she has undertaken is one which she does not mind in the least. From your letter I think that you are considering yourself more than you are the girl and her responsibility. In a way, everyone should think of themselves first, but I do not mean that one should be selfish. I think you are a bit, because you do not know what you want to do in regard to her. Better wait awhile and see how your feelings will be after you have experienced taking care of yourself.

The good hostess can do more than arrange for games in order to make her guests comfortable. To give them as complete a feeling of coziness as possible she will step up her housekeeping, because nothing short of a stiff breeze gives a home summer comfort so readily as complete, immaculate cleanliness. Curtains as white as soap and water can make them hanging perkily at spotless windows, woodwork well dusted and polished, lamps, ornaments, and pictures all agleam with the evidences of careful housekeeping, these things are a compliment to the guests.

Your Horoscope for Today

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS, Noted Atlanta Astrologist.

What today means to you if you were born between:

March 21-April 19 (ARIES)—It might be well to give business and social associates every consideration before 3:12 p. m. for you are apt to encounter a let-down feeling, or meet with coolness which may retard matters.

April 20-May 20 (TAURUS)—Social affairs, new friends, domestic affairs, financial dealings and your pet ambitions meet hindrances today. The combined influences of the day tend to carelessness, and you may find that your servants as well as yourself have the dropping habit and there will be greater breakage around the home.

May 21-June 20 (GEMINI)—The things you least expect to happen of a disruptive nature are likely to occur before 1:20 p. m. and because of such you may be forced to make a change.

June 21-July 22 (CANCER)—Money matters may be difficult today. The underlying trend of the entire day is towards unwise optimism, making this an inauspicious day for new and important undertakings, plans, decisions and changes.

July 23-August 22 (LEO)—Before 11:21 a. m. new beginnings may have a tendency to meet with disfavor. At this time others may not be sympathetic, or you will find much pessimism. Between 11:21 a. m. and 3:37 p. m. favors work that requires activity or strenuousness.

August 23-September 22 (VIRGO)—Before 9:01 a. m. may be considered the better part of the day when you will meet with opportunities to express and receive friendliness in contacts with others. You can come to agreeable solution, making this a favorable time for business, domestic and mental work.

September 23-October 22 (LIBRA)—Should you have important work that you want to materialize quickly, this is an excellent day to attempt it, for you are likely to find that others have a more favorable attitude towards you.

October 23-November 21 (SCORPIO)—The entire day may be considered an unimportant day, or day to attend to the less important things. You will need to use tact and understanding to avoid showing temperamental tendencies.

Choosing Your Fabrics For Back-to-School Clothes

By DOROTHY ROE.

If you've been worrying about sending your young hopefuls back to school this fall dressed in gunny sacks and old newspapers, you can stop now.

Little Johnny and Sister Mary will be just as warmly and smartly clad this year as ever before, and probably more so. Despite threatened shortages of virgin wool and silk, manufacturers are turning out warm, sturdy, serviceable school clothes in normal proportions.

In case there shouldn't be enough wool to go around, American ingenuity is right in there punching. And so we'll have clothes made out of skim milk, called Aralac, which looks and feels so much like wool that you'd have to be equipped with a microscope and test tube to tell the difference.

Re-used and re-processed wools have been proven to be just as warm and strong as new woolen fabrics, so don't start talking about the horrors of war when you see a wool content label which mentions re-processed wool.

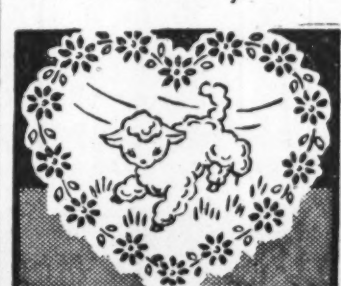

Top of the list in the school clothes fabric list is cordurella, the old favorite now known variously also as cordurex and cordurella. Since it's made of cotton, there's an ample supply, and it is said to be as warm as woolen fabric of the same weight.

Other heavy winter cottons are coming into the light, also, as priorities creep on. There are smart school suits of sturdy denim, sometimes lined in cotton flannel, and cotton upholstery fabrics are appearing on the list of wearables.

At present, however, you will still find a plentiful supply of pure wools, if you insist. In any event, Uncle Sam isn't going to leave your children out in the cold.

Tarzan Gets a New Mate In 'Jungle Girl', Frances Gifford

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 19.—(INS)

My friend Joe Pasternak is hopeful that lightning will strike twice in the same place. Joe, you see, has just made a deal with Jose Iturbi, noted pianist, to play himself in Kathryn Grayson's next movie, "Private Miss Jones." Iturbi will furnish a note very similar to the one Leopold Stokowski brought to "One Hundred Men and a Girl," the Deanna Durbin hit.

Pasternak made for Universal. With all her domestic troubles, Kathryn has one thing to cheer her up now and that is that Joe is guiding her career. He certainly worked wonders with Durbin. Once again, a symphony orchestra will be brought into the story and with Iturbi at the piano and Kathryn's lovely voice, we can count on some wonderful musical moments. Kathryn plays a girl brought up by an Army officer.

By Louella Parsons.

father, and when he goes to war she carries on as "Private Miss Jones," accompanying Iturbi on tours around Army camps.

Hold everything! Tarzan has a new mate—and what a mate! Beautiful Frances Gifford, who made her entrance into the movies as the jungle girl in Paramount's serial, has been borrowed by RKO for "Tarzan's Triumph," Edgar Rice Burroughs' jungle series, with Johnny Weissmuller, of course, as Tarzan.

Bette Davis is really wonderful. Every time she finishes a picture she says no more movies without a rest. Then someone will tell her the plot of an interesting story or play and she cannot resist doing it. The latest Bette has "listened" herself into is "Old Acquaintance."

and she starts immediately after just finishing "Watch on the Rhine."

For the first time in my movie memory, which dates back 30 years, a film actor has gone into the ministry. George Givot, the Greek ambassador of good will, has just entered the Baptist Theological Seminary with the idea of studying to be a chaplain in the Army. Givot, who is 39 years old, made his last film appearance in "Hop-a-Long-Casidy." He was so deeply touched by the suffering of his countrymen in Greece in this war, that he decided to put aside all else and try to do his part, which is really a splendid gesture.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD COLLECTED AT RANDOM: The girl from whom Charlie Chaplin mixed the salad dressing at Romanoff's was Luise Rainer no less; Bob Sterling is seeing his heart, Ann Sother, every eye before he leaves for the Naval Air Corps; Greer Garson has been fighting a hard case of flu, but despite her recent illness insists on leaving for a bond-selling tour; Rudy Vallee, who has been taking rhumba lessons at Arthur Murray's for seven weeks to lose weight, hasn't lost an ounce, but his instructor dropped eight pounds; a soldier fan has just sent Carole Landis a five-week-old Great Dane and it threatens to eat her out of house and home. That's all for today. See you tomorrow! But Gertrude Niesen says: "To help the Statue of Liberty continue to hold the only torch worth carrying, buy victory bonds and stamps."

An Answer to the Writers Of Murder Mysteries

By Dr. William Brady.

If you want to believe what you read in contemporary fiction perhaps you can get some wonderful ideas about every aspect of life. But how is the fiction reader to know whether the author is interpreting an aspect of life or whether the author is presenting an imaginary and perhaps false conception? This difficulty keeps me from reading contemporary fiction—except murder mysteries.

I have never found a murder mystery good enough to hold a reader's interest, in which the author attempted to interpret an aspect of life. If the author has a story, that is enough—readers don't care much what his interpretation of aspects of life may be.

Every little while a correspondent asks me how much of this or that poison must be given to kill a person, or some such question, and sometimes explains that he intends to use the information in the plot of a murder mystery.

The other day a correspondent asked whether air injected into a vein or into the blood would kill a man instantly and whether post-mortem investigation would disclose the cause of death. The correspondent did not give the usual explanation for his inquiry.

A few bubbles of air injected into a vein, for instance, by a hypodermic syringe, are harmless, and from experimental investigation it would seem that even a small continuous stream of air entering a vein would be equally harmless. In an experiment of D'Abreu, a French investigator, one and one-half pints of air had to be injected into a vein to kill a bull weighing 500 pounds. To kill a man a little less than enough air to fill a half pint measure would be necessary. That's a lot of air to inject into a vein—it would take some time and the chances are someone would come along and discover your fiendish plan before you

Federal Jury Clears Three Newspapers On Naval Story

WPB Freezes All Moving Picture Film

Hollywood Limited to Amount Used Last Year.

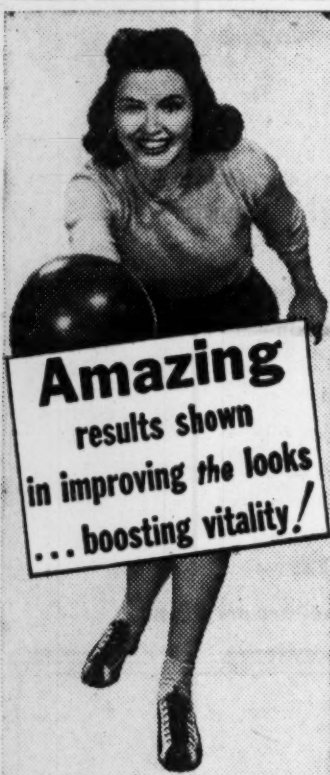

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—(AP)—The War Production Board today froze all moving picture film in the hands of manufacturers, effective at 11:59 p. m. tomorrow night, and announced controls which will limit the movie industry to the amount of film used last year.

No standard-size, 35-mm. film will be available henceforth for commercial advertising purposes, WPB ruled, and all other uses, including the big movie studios, will have to apply to WPB for permission to buy unexposed film.

The 35 mm. film for still cameras—the "candid camera" type—was not covered by the order because production already had been controlled through allocation of materials, WPB said, and a new order affecting film for amateurs "will be issued shortly."

Principal purpose of the order is to assure the Army and the Navy of all film needed by them for aerial observation and other military purposes. Other government agencies will get film for educational and morale building purposes only when their requests are approved by Lowell Mellett, chief of the motion picture bureau of the Office of War Information.

Lawson Men Must Respond To Court Order

Arnold Says Soldiers Here Are Subject to Summonses.

Officers and men of Lawson General hospital who are summoned to Atlanta police courts must respond to summonses, Judge Luke S. Arnold, of the traffic division, informed Captain H. G. Bently, of the office of quarter-master.

The question arose after a charge of reckless driving and accident was booked against Private Marion E. Black, 20, as a result of an accident at Glenn and West Whitehall streets. Black's government-owned machine is reported to have collided with a car driven by James E. Boach, 59, of Route 1, Atlanta.

Captain Bently asked that the charge against Black be cancelled and that he be turned over to Army authorities to handle.

Arnold cited a working agreement between city officials and Fort McPherson authorities through which minor offenders are paroled on city charges to their commands, but said it does not include accidents where personal injuries are involved. He contended that Black should answer the complaint in recorder's court.

The case was booked yesterday, and no contempt charge had been made out last night pending further conferences, but Judge Arnold appeared convinced that Black should appear "as a protection to civilians in the absence of martial law in Atlanta."

Decatur Co-ed Learns To Pick Crops on Farm in New York

One of 100 Students

Who Pitched in To Help Win.

If you really want to enjoy a summer vacation (?), the thing to do is go to work on a farm, according to Miss Ann Jacob, of 718 South McDonough street, Decatur, Agnes Scott junior who returned this week from Farm for Freedom in New York state, where she was one of the more than 100 college students who answered the call for farm labor during the harvest season.

The day begins at 5 o'clock, when an insistent cow bell wakes the girls and in an hour they have dressed, breakfasted and ridden to the farm where they will work for the day. At six they are busy picking strawberries, raspberries, cherries, apples, tomatoes or beans.

At noon there is a box lunch consisting of a couple of sandwiches, fruit and milk, then back to work until about four o'clock.

Picked Berries.
Ann says she picked a lot of berries in her eight weeks, and that during the first week she discovered she had a lot of muscles she never knew she possessed before. And all of them ached. After that, things were all right.

She is healthily sunburned and her hair which used to be light brown has been bleached to yellow by the sun. As a matter of fact, she says she had difficulty convincing her family that she hadn't been using peroxide.

"There was something about getting to know all those young people, and knowing that we were doing something really important for our country that made us forget the sore muscles," she said yesterday. "It really was the best vacation I ever had."

Farm for Freedom is not a farm. It is an organization which provided young college people to substitute for the farm labor which has been absorbed in the war effort. It was set up by three New York women, one of whom helped organize the farmerettes in the last war.

They took over an inn at Clermont, New York, where the girls stayed. Workers paid $10 a week for room and board.

Learns Money Value.
"I think one of the most important things about working at Farm for Freedom was that lot of us learned the value of money for the first time. It got to the point where we carefully estimated the cost of anything we wanted to buy by computing it in the quarts of strawberries it represented," she said.

The wage scale went like this: Strawberries, 4 cents a quart; cherries, 12 cents a basket; raspberries, 3 cents a pint; beans, 35 cents a bushel; apples and tomatoes, 30 cents an hour.

Each evening the farmers of Columbia county telephoned the Farm for Freedom to requisition their help for the following day. At a meeting after supper, the girls and boys learned what they were to do the following day. Farmers furnished transportation for the workers, to and from the farms.

Miss Jacob and a girl from South Carolina were the only representatives of the south. Most of the girls came from Vassar, Smith, Holyoke and Barnard. There were girls there from England, Austria, Switzerland and Yugoslavia.

Among the few boys was one from Turkey. Recreational facilities included swimming, baseball and other games, and movies on Friday night but there was no organized sports program, which contributed to the feeling of independence of the girls. The only rules were those about going to bed at 9 o'clock, which isn't hard to do when you are getting up at 5.

Climaxing her vacation as a farm girl, Miss Jacob spent two weeks in New York city as the guest of one of her fellow workers. It was her first trip to the metropolis, and Miss Jacob will tell you that being a farmerette or a metropolitan gal is lots of fun, even when the cock crows at 5.

Roxy Begins 'The Pied Piper' Tomorrow

Three Who Fled Nazi Bombings Relive Experiences in Film.

Three youngsters who suffered and fled Nazi bombings relived their experience on the set of "The Pied Piper," Twentieth Century-Fox's screen adaptation of Nevill Shute's best-selling novel, with Monty Woolley, Roddy McDowall and Anne Baxter. The film opens at the Roxy Theater tomorrow.

Twelve-year-old Roddy McDowall, the Huw of "How Green Was My Valley," whose home in London was hit three times by bomb shrapnel, ducks the Jerry attacks again in "The Pied Piper," a story of five refugee children, an English gentleman and a young girl who elude and outwit the Nazi juggernaut in its sweep across France.

Fleurette Zama, a French girl of 11, actually fled before the Nazi invasion, leaving Paris only four days before the Nazi legions marched in. She and her parents traveled to Marseilles over roads that were under almost constant bombardment. Her father, Emmanuel Zama, was a French film producer, but "The Pied Piper" is Fleurette's first movie work.

Peggy Ann Garner, aged 10, who plays Roddy's sister in the picture, has had no direct contact with the war, but her father, William H. Garner, legal adviser to the British embassy in Washington, went through several raids in London.

In the film, the children play a sequence in which they and other refugees are strafed and bombed by Nazi Stukas along a crowded road in France. It need hardly be said that the realism of the scene was easily matched by the realism of the performance.

Figuring Out New Tax Bill Keeps Senator George Busy

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—(P)—Does your job seem a little boring, a little tedious, a little confining, a little repetitious?

Then how would you like to trade places with Senator George, Democrat, Georgia, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, and his fellow senators, who have been considering a new tax bill?

They only had to sit still some 4-12 hours each day and listen patiently while a variety of witnesses expressed their views as to how the country should or should not be taxed.

In a period of approximately three weeks, approximately 250 witnesses appeared before the committee in the public sessions.

"It was the greatest number of witnesses ever to appear before the committee on a tax bill," said Carey Suttie, of Brunswick, Ga., secretary to the committee.

But the job didn't end with the taking of testimony in public.

Now the committee must hold executive sessions for two weeks before finally compiling its report and submitting the proposed legislation on the floor of the senate.

So if your job seems a bit tiring or tedious, then so is the task of trying to figure out the best

Employees Ask Return of Plant Seized by Navy

Workers Pledge No Interruption in Plea to Roosevelt

BAYONNE, N. J., Aug. 19.—(AP)—A request by the employees themselves that President Roosevelt return the Navy-seized Bayonne plant of the General Cable Corporation to private management awaited presidential attention today.

The workers who walked off their jobs a week ago Monday midnight in a wage dispute and returned last Friday when the Navy took over approved unanimously last night a resolution pledging them not to interrupt production again "for any reason during the prosecution of the war."

The promise was made, the resolution added, "with the understanding (to which we will dedicate all our efforts) that private operation will be resumed in a manner consistent with the war effort."

Rear Admiral Harold G. Bowen, in charge of Navy operation of the plant, said he serves to vindicate his opinion of the American workman. If given an opportunity, he will work out the answers in his own way.

Admiral Bowen said today a formal recommendation to the President for return of the plant to private management would go from him as a "natural course of events." He had no estimate of how soon action might be expected.

Alabama To Get Teachers From High Schools

2,500-3,000 Regulars Fail To Return To Posts.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Aug. 19. (AP)—Dr. A. H. Collins, state superintendent of education, told members of the Citizens' Advisory Education Council today that because of the acute shortage of teachers in Alabama's schools top-ranking high school graduates would have to be certified as teachers in some instances.

He pointed out that of the approximately 13,000 teachers employed last year, from 2,500 to 3,000 are not returning to their posts. No teachers have been secured for a few small schools in the state, Dr. Collins said, and they will have no means of reopening unless the teachers are secured immediately.

Declaring that the greatest percentage of losses to the teaching profession has been among the men teachers, Dr. Collins suggested that those men who are teaching subjects deemed essential by military authorities, such as math and science, be given some military status.

Emory Pushes Repair Work For Fall Term

Building Alterations Being Done With Non-Vital Materials.

Although the war has delayed a major construction program at Emory University, several campus improvements are now under way to increase the institution's efficiency "for the duration."

Using non-vital war materials, the university has made needed repairs and alterations on its gymnasium, swimming pool and cafeteria, and is building a new parking lot in the rear of the university hospital to relieve congestion in the event of an emergency.

The gymnasium, long a storm-center of student criticism, is undergoing repairs. According to President Goodrich C. White, this is a stop-gap measure to take care of the university's physical education program until a new plant can be erected after the war. The Emory student council contributed $900 toward the cost of repairs and replacing "spotted" stoves with a heating system, and installing new bleachers.

Dressing rooms at the swimming pool have been remodeled and repainted, and a coach's booth has been erected overlooking the pool for supervision of meets and swimming classes.

Fifteen years ago Emory built a dining hall which was used as an auditorium and the basement used as a cafeteria. Last week the cafeteria was moved up to its present quarters and the basement floor is being converted into student activities offices, pending erection of a student union. Materials used in this project were saved from a building torn down by the university 10 years ago.

The 200-car parking lot now being constructed at the hospital will eliminate parked cars on several narrow streets and drive-ways.

All improvements will be completed before the opening of the fall term September 24.
